Thread: [\[Rate\] thread design](#)

Razor 1911 - January 29, 2015, 2:57 am hello guys i recently made this thread design for free for a HF user and it is little different from mainstream thread designs that we see here... i accept its not professional looking but i personally kinda think its eye catching and people may actually like it..?? what do you guys think?

P.S - if you are gonna give a negative comment please try to be constructive and professional ?

i just realized use of red color is too much, red and white color combination literally fades away after the header.. ???

Too much red imo, but the overall is very nice. I like the arrows idea.

razor try getting inspired by something else, look at other clean and simple thread designs and pick a bit for everywhere then make you mind on what you like and color scheme

NemoFish - January 29, 2015, 8:31 am

I like it actually, but like you say to much red - And the arrows i think they can be confusing to some people, but overall great job..

7/10

thanks for your word bro :) i can make traditional thread designs the ones that are abundant of HF, very few graphic designers especially in the paid gfx section dare to try something new and creative that's not mainstream... this was my attempt to try something out of the box.. ? i hope you understand thanks for the rating nemo much appreciated ?

may be a balanced red white combination and little better spacing could make it upto 8.. what say??

I really like it! I think red, and black complement each other, and the design you have on the black looks amazing.

The color choice goes together, but not really in this sense.

I would go with the Instagram colors and make it look a bit more modern/professional.

The credits are the end are sorta "stand outish." I recommend putting that smaller, somewhere else.

i like this, the colours red and black are good both. 8/10

What the actual clusterfuck.

Too much going on on a very small space.

The text seems too big, and the spacing is bad overall.
