I highly advise people take advantage of this if they wish to learn a thing or two.

Skylar™ - January 31, 2015, 7:09 am

You told me to keep my eye out for this, especially since I'm looking to improve my basic skills in Photoshop and learn more about the program since I only know how to utilize certain tools to make designs or social media and HackForums.

I'll talk to you on Skype about this.

Aired - January 31, 2015, 9:17 am

May we see who the mentors are for this program?

Travs - January 31, 2015, 9:45 am

what did we say about that fucking hero image rivi

Benjiiii - January 31, 2015, 4:23 pm

I would love to take part in this, as I have done graphics for a few years although i know there is more i can learn.

Some of my work:

This is a small bit, i can show more if requested.

I will absolutely be able to complete 1 assignment per week, I already do so in my commercial arts class i am taking in school (around 3-4 assignments per week)

We are currently learning the pen tool, but i feel the class is very basic and just the fundamentals of design, as i am flying through everything without a problem.

Thanks for the opportunity, and feel free to contact me via PMs or skype with anymore questions (skype in sig)

Yes I will be able to complete 1 task per week for 5 weeks.

I am new to graphics and I have really grown within my short period of time.

I am one of the mentors.

However, that might change

Seems like an interesting proposition, and one I'm willing to take on. I'd love to be apart of this project, here is my application -

My five best pieces of work:

These are fairly old, I can't seem to find any that are fully up to date, however I can assure you I've progressed quite a fair bit since last creating these. I can range from thread layouts, animated work, sketches, banners, logos and much more; I love the idea behind the launchpad proposal.

My experience:

This is always an embarrassing topic for me. I've been doing graphics for six years, and admittedly; it doesn't show. I haven't progressed a whole lot over those six years, I never sought out to follow tutorials and oh how I regret it now. However, for the past year I've been reading tutorials in and out, and learning the ways of Photoshop, and I believe I now have what it takes to develop my skills. As for my fields of design, I have branched out in many areas, some of which are:

Website Designs
Thread Layouts
Animated Work
Banners
Logos
Userbars
Sketches
Tags

I believe one of the real reasons why I haven't been able to advance in PS is because of the lack of motivation, I've never really had a reason to pursue graphics, and I believe this is a prospering opportunity to do so. The assignments would push me to my limits, and give me something to work on. I've always needed a mentor, I've been a quick learner although I've always had questions; and through questions I believe is where I can really show my talent; from the learning process I trust that I have what it takes to develop my designing skill to a professional level.

Software used when designing: Photoshop

I'll cut it short here, I'm not quite sure how I'd prove that I would complete the assignments on time, but I assure you I will; this is a great opportunity for someone like myself.

If you have any questions feel free to send me a PM.

So, I consider myself a decent web designer but, I know I'm not that great when it comes to the designing part. I can code what I want but when it comes down to the designing work, I get stuck. I try but, almost everything I design comes out looking like complete shit. For example, take a look at my thread design and signature... Isn't that pretty terrible? I notice a lot of people applying already have the skill to do great work but, what about people like me? Will we get accepted? I'm pretty much summed it up that it would really help my skills being in this program.

If I'm chosen, I really look forward to working with you guys at the brotherhood.

Here is some of the things I've done:

Spoiler (Click to View)

Old thread design.

Something I threw together quickly to show a client.

Current thread design.

Logo I did.

I tried to draw Naruto once...

Also, just because I get stuck doing the designs, doesn't mean I can't do good design. It just takes longer because I don't have a good enough skillset.

Do people with minimal talent still have a chance?

Yes, the whole idea is to grow your ability in the respective field that you chose.

Superiorx3 - February 14, 2015, 10:06 pm

Yes, I will try my best to complete the project within the due date, as I do have a full time job.

I know a few things here and there, but I'm not the greatest.

5 Years of photoshop, but I'm not the greatest with it.

Tokyo ? - February 15, 2015, 12:18 am

If we dont have any work to display but are interesting in doing the program, what then? I habe graphics experience in the past, but it is all linked and I cant release the info on HF or any other site.

Connor Wickham - February 25, 2015, 5:18 pm

This was my application from Enterprise, I would really like to be a part of this program. Here was my old application as I am currently unable to re-edit this as I lost the file when I reinstalled windows and I find it pointless redoing as it took a couple of hours to get perfect. If you don't believe its me check my username history. Regardless, I hope I get accepted and good luck to other candidates.

Karnaugh - February 26, 2015, 12:43 pm

Hello!

I don't have any designs on my computer, they got deleted upon the formatting. But I would love to join this mentorship program, and I guarantee you I am able to complete the 1 task/week schedule. Even more.

I am learning Inkscape and GIMP at an IT class, but it's kind of basic.
I also know how to do some stuff in Photoshop, and I am the creator of the thread design that my signature links to.

Embargo - February 26, 2015, 12:53 pm

I can most definitely complete the assignments given to me to the best of my ability.
I've been using Photoshop on and off for around two and a half years now, which mostly include logos, signatures, banners, etc. but I've recently gotten into pen tool designs.
I want to learn from the best and improve on every aspect of graphic design that I possibly can.
