

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Gmail Trick

Ceelo - January 31, 2015, 6:17 pm

For those who don't know about this, one Gmail account can be used to create multiple accounts with most services.

All you have to do:

Okay, so take it that this is your email.

Example@gmail.com

What you have to do, is add a period in the begging part of the address anywhere. You can do this multiple times, with the period being in different spots.

So,

Ex.ample@gmail.com

Exa.mple@gmail.com

and so forth.

This is useful for netflix and stuff ? some sites may recognize it though. Worth a try for every site though!

PiraX - January 31, 2015, 6:19 pm

Thanks for the useful advice. I have never heard of this before.

QoL?? - January 31, 2015, 6:20 pm

Or you can do:

address@gmail.com

address+1@gmail.com

address+2@gmail.com

etc.

All emails sent to any of those addresses will go to the actual gmail account.

Ceelo - January 31, 2015, 6:21 pm

(Jan 31, 2015 07:19 PM)PiraX Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thanks for the useful advice. I have never heard of this before. Yes sir :D it only works for gmail though because that's the only email service that automatically removes periods (And any symbol that's not accepted in the email format, I believe)

PrivateDonut - January 31, 2015, 6:22 pm

Sh1eld just posted this the other day, I don't know if he deleted his thread or not.

Voltage25 - January 31, 2015, 7:36 pm

Ahhh never knew this! Thanks man! :)

SIM-1895736 - January 31, 2015, 7:46 pm

Knew this method. Thanks for sharing with the community :)