Not really a giveaway just spreading the word that the creator of streambot/chatr has released their product for free and discontinued updates. so :P here ya go
PM for download link (original download below, but website shut down)

Virus scan \(has 2 false positives that are obviously nothing\)

here is the website

Their official website here, has the same download links i posted above

You will need HQ proxies, just a heads up

Chatr is the same thing just server based and you can run scripts that make the accounts you use auto talk in the thread. It's overall the best one and its still easy to use.

Run it, click host then start the server, then run it again and click connect. Then its all basically the same thing.

(Feb 6, 2015 05:46 AM)N?o™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Same problem for me... :c

OP, What should we do for it?

I have been using it outside of sandbox, the developer as really nice and i honestly dont think this is a last attempt to infect a bunch of people. But it's up to you, i cant really 100% confirm it's safe, but i can confirm it works and im using it and that it comes up clean on virus total. Also i can confirm that it's quality software because i originally paid for it back when it first came out and made well over $600 selling live viewers on twitch. Its cool because one of my clients has moved to south korea and is now on a csgo team and has sub button and everything on twitch.

^excuse my poor grammar

Also here is the chatr thing working, it works with lan just ignore the settings and click host then start the server. Then just open it again and click connect and yes. A friend of mine has a thread and he sells twitch accounts and used to do scripts for chatre. I still have some old scripts for runescape streamers but they arnt hard to make.

Myth - Skype = "c-o-d-y_57" for twitch accounts.

What about it isnt working? it's pretty strait forward. Remember, not all the proxies work and it only allows 10 active viewws per 1 ip so alot of the instances may drop. just add like 700 and you should get ~50-100 viewers.

It's the offline viewercount i wanna get higher, but it won't work. See if you can add some offline viewers to this account (pm'ed twitch acc), because min won't do it.

Thanks.

have you selected them all and clicked connect? or added them to a channel? :P

Also they could be ban, but im not sure. pm me 1 or 2 accounts in oauth format so i can see if i can get it to work.

also, are you using chatr or the streambot?

ExTaCy1337 - February 7, 2015, 8:11 am

I am using Streambot and I cannot get to do anything.

I try to follow a channel and always this error appears and crash the program.
<http://prntscr.com/6271lf>

Any tips? Also the views don't work, it says I have threads but even after 24 hours 0 views on the channel. Tried both options , no increase anywhere.

I think the channel following is bugged still, try going to the website i linked and clicking the contact button. They might be able to confirm this, but as of now i think it is broken.

the viewer count works 100% for sure, active viewers that is. Make sure the proxies you use are checked against twitch and also i think this was another reason why they stopped selling the software because twitch found a way to stop viewcount (just normal one) from being botted.

You can always look into it :P they gave us everything to do whatever we want with it :) I might potentially contact the devs and see what issues they had see if i can fix it.

You need fast L1 proxies for the viewer bot.

You need decent proxies, few low quality proxies work so once you find a good high quality source it works great. check blackhat forums, they have a shit ton of proxy lists updated daily. dig deep for good ones

Viewers are a tricky thing to bot on Twitch.

- 1 viewer per IP (roughly).
- If that IP appears in 2 streams at once, that proxy is "banned" from giving a viewer. This is why public proxies will slowly die out.
- Only elite proxies work (?) <- Only tested once.

400 private proxies can easily give 500-600 viewers, if you only bot 1 stream at a time.

Views can still be botted, but it's not 1 view per request anymore. Not sure how this bot attempts it, but I doubt the old API link still works.

For anyone wanting to be partnered on Twitch,

Twitch will not close accounts that are view botting as long as you don't say "I'm view botting myself," but they won't let you get partnered either no matter how many real viewers you have.

You'll have to get lifelike chatters with the botted views for them to not notice.

dark_imperator - February 10, 2015, 1:30 pm

I was looking for a viewerbot but even with a decent amount of private proxies i can't get more than 50/60 viewers, if anyone know a good bot that can reach atleast 500/600 viewers i'm willing to pay for it.

Viewer bots aren't on the programming side but on the proxy side. If you can't get anything with your "private" proxies, are they really private? Those are expensive.

My bot that I could get 300k (~120k per server), with public proxies, before the latest updates now only does ~1.5x total private proxies. If I used public proxies, I can get about 0.1x when they're banned and ~0.5 unbanned (for a short amount of time). The only difference bots give now are how many resources they consume.

I paid for this program from Squidward back when they were first selling it here on HF. I paid like 20 bucks or something, it was awesome back then before we even needed proxies. They then sold it and the updates were always a bit lacking.
