UPDATE:

Hey guys. I won the case. To Proxy, fuck you. Here's a song in your honor.

[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uElagYlxXGc>]

I sold this dude an IG acc.

For unknown reasons, he decides to chargeback. He said he lost control of the account (I didn't jack it, it was fully secured). None of my business and not in my control if it gets jacked.

Payment proof + Hold:

I am currently working on resolving the deal and closing it with PP.

This user has a lot of scam reports on him. Not sure on why you'd still do a deal with him.

Same guy scammed me.

We didn't have to say much, PayPal checked to see if there was any suspicious logins and they claimed there weren't any. Idiot chargedback $2 from me and also lost.

Good job winning, praying that PayPal limits his account. They need to.
