Thread: Lizard Squad hacked Google. Is that news true? Yes.

Jinu - February 23, 2015, 7:40 am

I saw somewhere that the infamous band of hackers, Lizard Squad today hacked and defaced Google Vietnam's home page and the attack started at around 12.00 PM Vietnam time and many Internet users in Vietnam were unable to get access to google.com.vn. The defaced screen showed a image of a teenager holding a iPhone and a video along with a tweet from Lizard Squad.

If this is true I wonder wether they will be featured on the Google Hall of Fame. Guess not because they did not report it xD. <http://www.google.com/about/appsecurity/hall-of-fame/distinction/>

I doubt they hacked it legit. All Lizard Squad can do is ddos. They might've hired someone to do it with the money they made.

Where do you get your info from? They have an impressive list of achievements. Even if they just DDOS it's impressive downing the targets they did! Not your typical HF skid imo.

Just from seeing what they've done, Jordiee or whatever his name is said he made like 400,000$ from all of the ddosing xbox and selling his stresser. It appears to me that they only have a large botnet.

The only other thing I've seen them do is jack the domain or malaysiaairlines page and they made it redirect. Mind linking me to some other stories of their achievements?

Why did they chose the Vietnamese site? Why not the .com?

Because there was a security flaw and it is already fixed.

No. Especially not Google's.

I personally don't believe this at all, they went from ddosing Xbox Live (which in reality isn't really that much of an achievement when you have as much money as they make) and now they can all of a sudden deface one of the most secure websites in the world? Owned by the most successful company on the internet? Ran by the absolute best "tech guys" you could think of?

Think about how long Google has been around, and how many insanely good hackers there are. And you think these fucking Lizard cock suckers defaced Google? A bunch of skids who happen to have a botnet just defaced the most secure website in the world and got away with it? No. Fucking. Way.

It was done via DNS hijacking - this happened before multiple times but never to Googles main site.

This has happened several times in the past years with googles foreign websites that are barely used. Nothing more than a DNS hijack, once again, not hacking. Still impressive the social engineering skills they have but this IS NOT HACKING.

DDoSing something, big or not, is not hacking at all. They have a decently sized botnet, it's not very hard to do that when you have as much money and spare time as these guys have.

I seriously, seriously doubt that they jacked the domain themselves. I can almost guarantee that they had help from someone else, what's their IRC? I'm interested to see how they've convinced you to treat them like gods.

Please don't try and tell me what hacking is, I know fine well what it is. A Denial of Service attack in my eyes is not hacking, as now a days it's a skid pressing "Send" or "Attack". You find your OWN exploit in a router, or an operating system and you can crash it badly then I'll gladly say that's "Hacking" and related to Denial of Service. What WE are currently talking about is not hacking, it's a bunch of infected PC's flooding Xbox Live login servers for hours and hours.

He got closed for admitting to buying rep?

I didn't really see him say that, he just said he gave money away...

So could anyone elaborate for my own personal knowledge?

If they did then major props to them; they are good.

Edit: Of course it is immature, but thinking about it on the hacking point, getting into a google site is pretty cool.

he admitted that rep was what he was looking to get when he gave the money away basically so it didn't matter what he said after that

He actually wasn't closed for buying rep, the retards here are ignorant. He was closed for harassing a member or something he said on XMPP.

A Denial of Service attack in my eyes is not hacking, as now a days it's a skid pressing "Send" or "Attack". You find your OWN exploit in a router, or an operating system and you can crash it badly then I'll gladly say that's "Hacking" and related to Denial of Service. What WE are currently talking about is not hacking, it's a bunch of infected PC's flooding Xbox Live login servers for hours and hours.

I guess we'll see, coming on now! Thanks ?

In a hackers eyes it might not be classed as hacking but to the general public it is. You act like you can do so much more than these guys but i guarantee you can't. When you manage to achieve what they have then come back and run your mouth.

Even though they're able to process really large DDoS attacks, have you ever thought about how they're able to do this?

Some of the members does have a huge base of knowledge in regards to hacking, coding and exploitation.

Lizard Squad is a bunch of scrubs. They seriously do not deserve all the attention they get.

Lulz-Sec, now that's who deserved the attention they received.

They do nothing but DDoS. They can't hack for shit and if they do manage to somehow gain access to something its because of Social engineering.
