It cant get much easier. They literally explain step by step what to do and they code it live... Also, why start with a keylogger? If you are new to this programming language try to make easier and more useful things.

I think you should learn to code before you make a keylogger.

I don't know why you're coming here to ask people to do the searching for you because you can literally do one google search and find a keylogger source.

```
imports System.Global.Keyboard
```

```
SetGlobalKeyBoardHook(Address Of(Function))
```

Please, use the search button. I usually like to help people but holy crap I'm tired of these keylogger threads, there are 25 pages already only in this section:
