Let's Start ...

This is my 7th tutorial, for all previous tutorials please check the top of this post. Today we'll cover the basics of online arbitrage. We'll use SEOClerks and re-sell their gigs on fiverr. This method is idiot-proof for anyone with little common sense. Technically this method requires investment but it's as low as 1$.

Requirements. SEOClerks Account (<https://www.seoclerk.com>)

Fiverr Account (<http://www.fiverr.com>)

Investment up to 10$

Brain

Method.

This is really simple though, what we're going to do is visit SEOClerk, find something hot and re-sell it on fiverr for profit. As you know fiverr takes 1$ from each of your sales, hence cutting down profit to 3$ per gig (bear in mind you have to purchase Gig from SEOClerk as well).

You see, all the buyers on fiverr are trained to have the "mind set" of $5 per gig. No matter what the value of the gig, sellers will sell it for $5 or the multiple of $5. So in the mind of buyers, when they see an offer, they know $5 is low as it goes.

As you can see the image above, all five bucks! So there is no need for buyers to compare price, only what the gigs are all about!

The psychology side of the buyers sounds good. But where do you get outsourcing gigs that you can profit from?

This is where we tap into SEOClerks...

Seoclerk is a marketplace similar to Fiverr, but with way less popularity and doesn't fix price at $5. Now let's go ahead and click on the "Rank by price" button.

Guess what... There are tons of gigs with price of only $1!

There are 40 gigs listed per page. Well you do math! Not to count new $1 gigs are being added everyday. Of course there are enough gigs for everybody to resell! Also, you can tweak the headline and description to be different and stand out. Every gig's seller has already found the need in the market, you just need to copy, paste, and resell it! Yup, $1 --> $4 (After Fiverr commission cut).

How to Resell

Obviously you can just blindly copy gigs, but the efficient way to do it is to find the gigs that are in highest demand!

Apparently, this seller is selling 1,000 retweets. And she has sold over 121 times from just one gig. Now let's head over to Seoclerk, and here is one of the gigs with competitive advantage.

This seller on Seoclerk is selling 2000 retweets. Bingo! And trust me, there are people who will see this and buy the 2000 retweet instead of the 1000. Because in most people's mind, "more is better". Some don't even care if it's USA retweet or something. Now of course you don't need to do tons of research finding gigs on Fiverr to compete with. You can just put most of your time into copying gigs from Seoclerk that you think is good.

Remember, the more gigs you list your Seoclerk gigs on Fiverr, the more earning potential there is for you!

How To Add Gigs

Let's use the previous example.

So the title is "give you Instant 2000+ quality Retweets Or Favorite within 2 hours". Go ahead and copy that title and paste it in to Fiverr's create gig page, and choose the category.

You can just copy and paste it. But I recommend you tweak the headline and description a little bit. Like instead of "quality", you can say "high quality".

Regarding description simply copy/paste it from SEOClerks. You can tweak it a little as well if you feel like doing so.

Same goes for delivery time.

Always put your delivery time on fiverr 1 day+ more than the gig listed on SeoClerk. That way, you will have time to receive the completion message from SeoClerk, then paste it to respond to the fiverr buyer.

You can either add your own tags, or copy them and tweak it.

Conclusion

So basically this is how process looks like.

It's really that simple, except the part where you're looking for high demand gigs.

Azraelstear - March 5, 2015, 7:02 am

The best thing about gigs arbitrage is ... most buyers are inexperienced (no experienced webmaster think 1000 UIP's/day for 2 weeks period is real traffic if it costs 5$).

So actually, even if you purchase junk from someone (pick sellers with good reputation - they might not have legit service, but sure they can proof some legitimacy with screenshots ...), you will get good rating from your buyers.

And you will get tons of ratings. Because you can literally have 100 different offers on these sites, traffic, retweets, likes, comments, video video views, graphics, voiceovers while if you would offer only services you can deliver by yourself, it would be one or two services, not hundreds.

Looks like an awesome and effective method. Given the 20 active gigs you can have on Fiverr at once, you should be making some good money with this method.

saturated actually.. ;) it wont work . just look at the people that apply for new "Jobs" there's tons of them and 1 or 2 from 100 actually gets an offer only highest rated gets good ammount of offers others may not even try.

It will work if you put your mind towards it. Yea it might take some patience, but 3x profits sounds pretty sweet to me, especially if you're going to invest $1000+

I wouldn't say the method is saturated, there are many different services on SEO clerks, and you can mix and match different ones to create new concoctions of services.

Then your service sux or you didn't make the effort to put reasonable description.

I've tried Fiverr just for a test (i'm not interested in 5$ sales), I've put reasonable offer, good description and got 2 sales (fresh account without rankings) and I've sent some 10% extra to my customers so one of them made new order.

YES, you can fail. But you can fail with anything, especially with your approach.

Everything is saturated. And if it's not, it will be in weeks.

There are people which makes money by finding something new and unsaturated and squeezing max out of it while it's not saturated.

And there are people which jump into any oversaturated market, niche or method and still make loads of money because they work harder then most and also because they do things better.

This means your GIG TITLE attracts some people but the service description don't.
Make new GIG with slightly tuned (try something eye catching but not suspicious) TITLE and heavily improved description.

It's trial/error about what works best to generate sales.

First of all, many thanks to Sonex for this guide. Now, here is my story:

Some time ago, before reading this thread, I tried Fiverr. Made an account, info, complete profile and things like that. So, I posted 2 gigs on there and waited. They had very low impression although they were truly unique ones. I was providing either things I could get for free or really really cheap. Sadly nothing happened. It was my rating, the truth is that Fiverr is extremely overcrowded with people. You can have the best title and description in the world but it is going to be VERY hard at first. But then I started using my mind, and got away from Fiverr. The max is 5$, I get 4$ (because of 1$) and this for me is too low. So long story short, I knew the lesson so I had to do reselling and the rest I had to figure out myself. I searched for websites where I could sell them and found some perfect ones. (Farewell Fiverr). And then search for new sources of buying or getting things/services cheap and guess what? In the first week I made 176$ and I had invested around 50$ so that makes me around 126$ of profit. That is what I call reselling. To get profit on Fiverr you need to make at least 3$ profit, that means:

you earn 4$ (1$ Fiverr fee), and let's suppose you spent at least 1$ then your profit is just 3$. Now, to get 126$ of profit you need $126/3 = 42$ gigs at week. I managed to do it with only 10. So the point is:

Start thinking!! Sonex is not showing you how to use Fiverr, Sonex is just take it and SeoClicks as examples! You have to understand the method which is RESELLING. Think it, study it, and use it! Those are only to simple sites that Sonex shows you, the rest you are on your own. You are supposed to learn from his images not imitate them. If you want to make money then start thinking. Again, many thanks to Sonex for his threads.

Thank You!

Hmm, I've been testing this with not only fiverr but with craigslist ads and having some good success. I even outsource articles from iwriter for writing gigs now.

Anyone have tips to make the process more automated? I usually use google surveys to get my buyer to fill out information which I then send to the one completing the service. but I'm stumped on anything else. Maybe some program that automatically logs me in and orders a gig when ever someone orders from me?

Coming here to post my results thus far, had my first order 10 days ago after having nothing for like a month.

Decided to make work of it and these are the results.

+4$ still needs to be added, so a total of $32 of which $25 is profit.. not bad :) it's starting to get better now

So I know I posted my results here yesterday.. but since business has been booming since then I'm once again coming here to post an update.

Look at those upcoming earnings in the top right! :)

Very correct. The first part, getting those first sales is by far the hardest. I'm now a level 1 seller after getting my first order like 12 days ago, I think this will help a lot gaining more orders as well! Removing gigs with bad results soon and adding new soon so I can get more sales.

It took me a month to get my first buyer, but then again I wasn't really trying that hard. With you there are 10s of new other sellers probably offering the same service every day, making it hard for you to just randomly get a sale.

You could try out selling some gigs through the buyer requests section, it's all about getting those first couple of sales. Maybe it would even be easier would exchange reviews with other new Fiverr users so you can get the ball rolling..

You get them to pick your Gig if it's something ultra popular, like anything related to social medias. But even then you will have to wait for a while, once you start getting sales you'll get better ranks too.

You cant just "do that", when you get first order, make sure to over-deliver, that way you'll most likely get positive feedback, once you do, you'll get more and more buyers.

Dear Sonex,

I've had an issue with my gigs on Fiverr lately. I decided to post here instead of PMing you like I used to, as I saw you prefer people do that. Anyway here's the deal; Fiverr has removed quite some of my gigs from the search results. I already contacted them and they said it was because of the type of services I offered (social media related services) and I would have to offer different services in a better way to prevent them from removing them. They did not remove all of my gigs, however I'm afraid they might do so. My sales actually have only been increasing even though they removed half of my gigs.. Anyway, them shutting down more of my gigs would result in I think negative results, less sales etc...

To come to my question; is there any way I can prevent them from removing my gigs from the search results and is there any way I can get the ones that have been removed back on there, again? One they removed was my best seller with 12 orders to date (they removed it like a week ago).

That's odd, you sure you didnt receive any negative feedback or someone picked on you and reported you? I see no reason to remove your Gigs though.

I average a 5-star rating with 25 reviews. Only have a 3.5 and a 4.5 star review, which are both still positive reviews. They said it was because they remove them as soon as third parties report my gig to them.. Which I think sounds very odd. I'm pretty sure Twitter is not browsing the Fiverr gig pages to bust people selling Twitter followers.. besides - there's a ton of people out there offering Twitter followers, too, a lot of gigs stay in there forever (I guess). I guess it could be possible someone picked on me and reported me.. could pretty much be anyone actually.. anyone selling the same service as I am/was wouldn't mind seeing the competition get removed, ofcourse. Really weird, like I said, some other gigs are still up and running and getting several orders a day at this moment.

Just look around on Fiverr. There's many proofreading/editing gigs out there with plenty of customers.. So yes, you can profit from it. It will however be harder to actually get those first orders with such established competitors.

Here's a screenshot of mine.

<https://gyazo.com/d746924301a888456cb0e4eede1cc93a>

Note that there's also $60 more upcoming earnings in the top right corner. Total around $450 in sales of which around $380-$400 is actual profit.

Fiverr's saturated.. very saturated.. but do not let this stop you from trying to claim your spot. There's a lot of sellers, but the reason for that is that there's also a lot of buyers.

So what you're basically doing is waiting until someone buys your copied gig and use that money to buy the cheaper seoclerk gig, right? And how would we go about giving the buyer their product?

TheRepsAreLying - July 4, 2015, 4:27 pm

It's funny because this guy <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4209402> sells the exact same service and rips people off while you get it here for free.

great method, probably a little slow to start with though. The same concept can be used anywhere really, buying cheap (esp. chinese products) of a site like ebay and reselling for a better price, whether you actually own it before the person places the order or if you buy it after like this method. thumbs up to sonex for all his tutorials.

I'm starting today with 3 gigs (twitter fw, instagram likes and yt views) and see what happens. I'll update as soon as I have some profit. Anyway I think the market is quite saturated, there's a lot of competition

It's a waiting game yes, however for quicker results you should over-deliver first Gigs so you raise feedback faster. Although, pay attention not to tap into "too saturated" niches.

the good old arbitrage. i did something similar a few years ago. reselling is always profitable.
outsourcing is the key ;)

So this is all about:

1. Find something of SEOclerks
2. Make gig of fiverr that looks professional and is competitive to similar (one day+ delivery time than in SEOclerks)
3. If anybody purchase our gig on fiverr, we purchase it on SEOclerks
4. We give data (profile for subscription for example) from fiverr buyer to SEOclerks seller
5. SEOclerks seller make what offered, fiverr buyer response that everything is ok.
6. We are happy from the transaction.

Am i right? Because i dont know exactly how "subscribers buying" and so on works (never done this by myself).

How much money it could generate if i devote 1h per day for this?

If you wish to watch a video, thanks to Royal Straight he made one.

[Video: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=S6c_5oASfG8]

Let's Start ...

This is my 7th tutorial, for all previous tutorials please check the top of this post. Today we'll cover the basics of online arbitrage. We'll use SEOClerks and re-sell their gigs on fiverr. This method is idiot-proof for anyone with little common sense. Technically this method requires investment but it's as low as 1$.

Requirements. SEOClerks Account (<https://www.seoclerk.com>)

Fiverr Account (<http://www.fiverr.com>)

Investment up to 10$

Brain

Method.

This is really simple though, what we're going to do is visit SEOClerk, find something hot and re-sell it on fiverr for profit. As you know fiverr takes 1$ from each of your sales, hence cutting down profit to 3$ per gig (bear in mind you have to purchase Gig from SEOClerk as well).

You see, all the buyers on fiverr are trained to have the "mind set" of $5 per gig. No matter what the value of the gig, sellers will sell it for $5 or the multiple of $5. So in the mind of buyers, when they see an offer, they know $5 is low as it goes.

[img]http://i4.minus.com/jbqtKMyhCehUQi.png[/img]

As you can see the image above, all five bucks! So there is no need for buyers to compare price, only what the gigs are all about!

The psychology side of the buyers sounds good. But where do you get outsourcing gigs that you can profit from?

This is where we tap into SEOClerks...

[img]http://i7.minus.com/j7kRUZgx4k0sN.png[/img]

Seoclerk is a marketplace similar to fiverr, but with way less popularity and doesn't fix price at $5. Now let's go ahead and click on the "Rank by price" button.

[img]http://i6.minus.com/j7AzAks9r28Ec.png[/img]

Guess what... There are tons of gigs with price of only $1!

[img]http://i2.minus.com/jGKquRqHAh6yw.png[/img]

There are 40 gigs listed per page. Well you do math! Not to count new $1 gigs are being added everyday. Of course there are enough gigs for everybody to resell! Also, you can tweak the headline and description to be different and stand out. Every gig's seller has already found the need in the market, you just need to copy, paste, and resell it! Yup,$1 --> $4(After fiverr commission cut).

How to Resell

Obviously you can just blindly copy gigs,but the efficient way to do it is to find the gigs that are in highest demand!

[img]http://i6.minus.com/j4rihpWFqDoM9.png[/img]

Apparently, this seller is selling 1,000 retweet. And she have sold over 121 times from just one gig. Now let's head over to seoclerk, and here is one of the gigs with competitive advantage.

[img]http://i5.minus.com/jF7ed9ETKNZI4.png[/img]

This seller on Seoclerk is selling 2000 retweet. Bingo! And trust me, there are people who will see this and buy the 2000 retweet instead of the 1000. Because in most people's mind, "more is better". Some don't even care if it's USA retweet or something. Now ofcourse you don't need to do ton of research finding gigs on fiverr to compete with. You can just put most of your time into copying gigs from SeoClerk that you think is good.

Remember, the more gigs you list your SeoClerk gigs on Fiverr, the more earning potential there is for you!

How To Add Gigs

Let's use the previous example.

[img]http://i7.minus.com/jbkSur9VFIzFb2.png[/img]

So the title is "give you Instant 2000+ quality Retweets Or Favorite within 2 hours". Go ahead and copy that title and paste it in to fiverr's create gig page, and choose the category.

[img]http://i2.minus.com/jsYoDAcEqWiAS.png[/img]

You can just copy and paste it. But I recommend you tweak the headline and description a little bit. Like instead of "quality", you can say "high quality".

Regarding description simply copy/paste it from SEOClerks. You can tweak it a little as well if you feel like doing so.

[img]http://i4.minus.com/jVGGa966RTvB5.png[/img]

Same goes for delivery time.

[img]http://i5.minus.com/jXDx10JKDUXsA.png[/img]

Always put your delivery time on fiverr 1 day+ more than the gig listed on SeoClerk. That way, you will have time to receive the completion message from SeoClerk, then paste it to respond to the fiverr buyer.

You can either add your own tags, or copy them and tweak it.

Conclusion

So basically this is how process looks like.

[img]http://i1.minus.com/jbg4dbdgnhYU6l.png[/img]

It's really that simple, except the part where you're looking for high demand gigs.

Have Questions?

Do not hesitate to post them in the thread, I'll create FAQ as well to help others.

Just so I can get this clear.

Find gigs in demand on fivver that I can get for low on Seoclerks and resell it with my tweaked $5+ service on Fivver and of course -1$ per sale for fivver.

$4 per sale. Lets say I get 100 buys of "x' service , that's $400 - $100(from Seoclerks) = $300 profit for the sake of the example?

Goes something like that>

I'll give this a take later on today since im at work right now.

How much time you approximately need to set everything up if starting from scratch? (Adding 20 gigs with a good title and description) and how long does it take until you get somewhat ranked at fiverr so people will see your gigs?

Thanks for the great tutorial!

You're basically re-selling and if we go by the terms of re-selling you just copy/paste description from SEO clerks, shouldnt take you more than 2 minutes per Gig to create it.

You can also offer 1-2$ on HF for reviews on your Gig to boost it up.

I guess not, no need to have verified PayPal.

alfas77 - August 16, 2017, 4:51 pm

Excellent post, I really liked all the information. But I think that's not updated, since SEOClerks doesn't have so many good services at good prices that boost us earnings in other reselling platforms like Fiverr.

Another thing is that SEOClerks searches are too broad cause we can't search for the top sellers anymore. Did you make any changes in 2017 on this method?

Thanks.

Sorry for the delay, I have been away for quite some time.

The messages I received are as follows after posting a youtube boosting gig (it was my only gig listed, so far) :

We are constantly working on improving every aspect of our marketplace. Our dedicated team has reviewed your account activity and determined that it is in violation of our Terms of Service and/or other policies. As a result, this message is to let you know that your Fiverr account has been disabled.

Any available balance that remains in your account after 90 days, will be available for withdrawal pending account verification and approval by our team.

For more information, please review our Terms of Service.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact us

Thanks,

The Fiverr team

We appreciate you taking the time to create/update your Gig send at least 2000 people to watch your youtube video. Unfortunately we had to remove your Gig.

The reason is:

Your Gig has been flagged by our team following a third party complaint claiming your Gig is infringing upon their intellectual property rights and/or violating their terms of use. As a valued member of the Fiverr community, we ask you to respect the broader Internet community and refrain from such violations in your Gig offerings as this is misleading to our buyers.

We kindly ask that you consider the above suggestions when creating a new Gig. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to reach out at Fiverr Help Center. For more information, please review our Terms of Service.

Thanks,

I am unable to PM, because I have new account restrictions. This website is very keen on making you purchase a membership in order to do just about anything. I can't visit most boards, post in most threads, I cannot PM and nobody takes me seriously. It is more difficult to build yourself up from 0 than I thought. Been sitting here trying to use HF methods for about a month at this point and all I have to show is wasted time.

Not sure what some of you do to get banned. It probably triggers it when you create 2+ gigs with a fresh account, honestly looks like a scam from their POV.

Just attempted this method, it was immediately denied for "Third Party TOS violation, Suspicion of fraud or spam"

EDIT:

I tried with something different and it worked fine. They only are denying when I make a gig about instagram likes.

EDIT 2:

It may be a problem to mention these websites by name, I made two sales whilst I was asleep on "100 high quality youtube views" and I also saw my account was taken down not too long after. If anyone has a similar experience and a way to bypass this, please let me know.

sonex - July 10, 2020, 2:09 am

Reselling anything from views to likes is still very viable even in 2020. Do your research and try to stand out. It requires no investment therefore you have no excuses not to try it! Good luck.

sonex - July 23, 2020, 12:22 am

I just stumbled across this article, it gives you even more ways of reselling on fiverr by utilizing different websites - <https://www.pfind.com/alternatives/seoclerks>

If you're new to online money-making this is a great read. It requires no upfront innvestment but can make you some pocket change rather quickly!
