Thread: [Any Way to Copy ALL Old Messages From One Person? \[Facebook\]](#)

Effexion - March 6, 2015, 4:44 am

I am trying to find a link I would have sent to someone at some point. The problem is, I don't know when. I want to copy the whole conversation to my clipboard so I can paste and search '.com'.

Are there any ways?

You can always try to download your facebook data maybe that will work.

Have you tried ctrl+f and typed .com etc in it? But for the whole conversation grabbing I'm not sure. Is this a huge conversation?

14,000 messages ?. CTRL+F doesn't work well as not all messages load.

Holy fuck haha. Try scrolling all the way up to load them? Worth a shot.

Try this:

Not sure if it will download your messages but it's worth a try.

It just stops and says "loading older messages" you then have to wait lol. Using m.facebook.com at the minute as you just click for older there. Still taking AGES lol. I'm at Feb 20 2014 at min. I met him in 2010 lol.

4 years is a long time depending how many messages you've sent back and forth.

I was able to copy a conversation I was having for 2 years with someone on Facebook and I have it saved in a notepad.
