Thread: Jay Electronica is better than your favorite rapper's favorite rapper

Your Pal - March 6, 2015, 2:04 pm

A shitty version of the song was leaked awhile ago so he decided to release an official studio version.

Do not sleep on this man. You're slowly witnessing history and the birth of a new generation in hip hop and other-worldly lyrics.

64eidryfhhi - March 6, 2015, 2:33 pm

he's never going to come out with an album, so there is no history to be witnessing. he's not going to change the game up. unless he drops an illmatic/36 chambers/ready to die/whatever

Fredo - March 6, 2015, 2:38 pm

Can't sleep on someone who sleeps himself.

It's funny because his catalog is on par with every single classic album you just listed. Take the time to LISTEN and STUDY his music before saying some ignorant shit like you just did. :^) i dont think you understand what i said

im saying

he's never releasing an album

even if he did have material just as good as illmatic

mixtapes are not albums

so until he comes out with an album and shakes the game

he'll just be like killah priest forgotten in the 90s

jay electronica, left behind and forgotten in the 2010s (in 2020's we gon be saying this)

I agree with you somewhat. Until he releases Act 2: Patents of Nobility he isn't doing much in the rap game. But you have to agree that whenever he releases a single from the album the internet and rap community goes bonkers because everything he releases is straight fire. And that's why we're all impatiently waiting for this album to drop - because we know it'll be a game-changer. Please agree with that at least.

But you know you're shit bro. But btw, Killah Priest still killing shit.

Cronus- - March 7, 2015, 11:43 am

He's not bad, but he's deffo not the best.

NewMan - March 7, 2015, 1:47 pm

It's pretty good but nothing compared to Eminem, Dre & Snoop

Dre is barely a rapper and Snoop hasn't released anything decent since his Snoop Doggy Dogg days.

You do know he didn't write any of those songs on that record, right? All of his music is ghostwritten. I don't consider Dre a rapper. Period.

But he's one of the greatest producers ever.

Premortal - March 11, 2015, 9:07 pm

I'm definitely a fan of his, although I'm still surprised to this day that I found out about him from a Paul Wall track.

Okay by that logic, Eminem is not a rapper either coz he has about 10 ghost writers per song.

FRANKIE - March 12, 2015, 2:35 am

The devil the bloggers the papers the labels they labeled me. But they can't relate to my struggle my nigga we came up from slavery.

TOUGH.

FinnBuate - March 13, 2015, 5:57 pm

Uzi Weighs a ton was sick, and obviously his verse on control (probably how alot of people found him). Its a shame if he never does release an album

Such a sick song, I've always love Jay z's and Electronica's diss of Drake

I'm 99.99% sure Eminem doesn't need any ghostwriters. He's arguably the greatest rapper to ever do it; you don't to that point using "10 ghost writers per song". If he did have ghostwriters I'm sure people would know about it.

Want to know why Dr. Dre isn't considered one of the greatest rappers ever? because he's never written any of his songs without the help of ghostwriters. It's a known fact.

He's done with rapping, said that Snoop Dogg the gangster is dead.

It's a character like Eminem's Slim Shady or MF DOOM's Viktor Vaughn.

I've never been a fan of West Coast hip-hop anyway so meh. Similar to that of Yasiin Bey retiring the Mos Def name to focus on other things.

But concerning that Eminem, Dre & Snoop discussion. All of them reigned supreme in the rap game during their time. They were a part of history and will always be remembered for that. But when it comes to talking about rappers right now you can't even compare them tbh. Like when we're talking Jay Electronica, Joey Badass and Flatbush Zombies etc, why even bring up those guys out of their glory days? If we were having a late 80s early 90s discussion discuss N.W.A. Snoop and Dre. When we're talking about 90s to early 2000s discuss Eminem. But when a nigga comes into a discussion about albums dropping right now or even a month or two ago and he wants to bring up chronic he needs a quick smack in the head.

People do know about. I didn't say Dre was the greatest, but he made one of the best albums of the entire genre.

Notice of how his hits (bezerk, rap god) have 10+ writers?

No wonder I don't like any of his current music.
