Thread: [Revoking warning level? \[Staff please read :\(\)\]](#)

Ainan007 - March 12, 2015, 4:50 pm

So yesterday i got 20+ points on my warning level

(ignore the other 25..... that was my fault.... read my sig :/...then again still my fault)

but i dont deserve this 20+ it says i got it for posting Junk

but i simply replied to some guy's thread about a new NanoCore theme

I could tell OP was french (by the way he wrote and stuff) so i replied in french since i am bilingual.... my post was not hateful or anything

I said this:

Merci beaucoup pour le design je vais l'utiliser....

Merci encore une fois

TRANSLATION:

Thanks alot for the theme i'll be using it...

Thanks once again.

What can i do about this? ive PMed staff but they wont respond :(

You shouldn't of posted this.

But that's none of my business.

"If you have a question about the warning please PM the staff member you received it from. If you click your profile then click the warning percentage you should get more details including who warned you".

I believe you got those points because I remember in the Help Docs it said you may only write in English.

Jesus Crust - March 12, 2015, 5:03 pm

Just accept it, it's not a big deal. It will pass.

Pew ? - March 12, 2015, 5:40 pm

Why didn't you PM the staff member that gave you the warning instead of making a thread about it?

Roger Waters - March 12, 2015, 5:43 pm

PM the staff member who issued you the warning to discuss it. I can tell you that you were issued the warning for posting in a different language other than English. As this is an English speaking forum, you are expected to post in the English language. If you've already sent a message to that staff member, wait for them to make a response.
