Thread: How to add an image inside text

JonSnow - March 19, 2015, 4:25 pm

Haven't seen a tutorial for this so I decided to make one. It may seem like simple stuff to some of you but others may not know how.

For my example I have used a 550x170 Pixel image size and the font used was Impact.

Step One:

Create the text

Step Two:

Resize the text to fit the desired area

Step Three:

Download the image you want and open in photoshop

Step Four:

Select the image then copy & paste on top of your text

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Step Five:

With the image layer selected, go to Edit then Create Clipping Mask

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Step Six:

It should look like this

Step Seven:

Move/resize the image until you get the desired look

[Optional]

Step Eight:

If you want a drop shadow select the text layer and press the fx button then Drop Shadow

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Step Nine:

Experiment with the different options to see which you think is best then press OK

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Finished Product:

Hope you all found this useful.

OP throw a sidenote in you can also create the clipping mask by holding alt and moving the mouse between the two layers the top layer then becomes the clipping mask
