Thread: Starting A Fish Business

ilikeskateboards627 - March 21, 2015, 10:12 am

So, I am a 14 year old boy, I love fishing, and I catch ALOT of fish. I usually just let them go but I was wondering how to start a business out of selling them. I live in the woods and I don't know how to advertise it and get people to buy. So here are my questions:

1. How do I keep them fresh?
2. What do I need to do this?
3. How much will it cost?
4. How much will I make?

Thanks in advance!

You can post ads on craigslist I believe, I think the pay would vary a lot unless you do some personal digging.

If I could rep you for that quote right now, I would.

I fish all the time, one of my most favorite hobbies.

1. dry ice - when I bring fish back from Canada to the States, wrapped the filets in paper wrapping, and storied in a cooler filled with dry ice.
that's for transportation, idk how long they'll stay good for on dry ice. I normally switch them from that to my freezer then.
2. you'll need the freezer, some coolers, a bait well to keep alive fish (At the time) in, a club/stick to knock out the fish, a blade, experience in fileting them, place for storage, reels, rods, extra line, bait, riggings, etc.
3. you take into consideration all of the above, and price them out. also have to acknowledge you will want to sell them, so any marketing/advertising expenses as well.
4. depending on who you sell bulk to, they'll price you per/pound on each type of fish.
