

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Recommend Me a Colour-Scheme

Effexion - March 25, 2015, 2:21 am

For the duration of this thread I am going to ignore the squiggly line under 'colour'. I am British and I won't let Windows tell me any different.

I personally love the colour-scheme I have going, but it has received a lot of criticism. I suppose at the end of the day, it does matter what others think as it's others that will be visiting.

I am using Kuler to try and find a better scheme but nothing is jumping out at me.

Any ideas.

PLEASE DON'T SAY "USE WORDPRESS". This site is being used as an educational tool for me to hone my HTML/CSS.

Site is in my sig.

Baghead - March 26, 2015, 10:56 pm

White and a light, neutral feeling pink or blue. Pretty much the colors in my sig.

Aeolus - March 27, 2015, 5:33 am

[img]<http://i.ipixls.net/fmFRo7G.png>[/img]

I suggest to remove the pink thing and to make the text of the links a bit bigger. Nice back ground.

xitoxic - March 27, 2015, 6:10 am

Hello, You can try checking some cool colour schemes at <http://colourlovers.com>

You can filter the most loved schemes, palettes or patterns.

Thanks

Effexion - March 27, 2015, 9:11 am

Thanks for the advices, guys. I'll go check that out xitoxic. Aelous, it looks awful on that browser. What browser is it? There's also a video and text in the pink part. Going to change it about as I was saying earlier. Color-scheme (will try Baghead's advice) and I'm going to add a little noise to it to break it up.

Strafe - March 27, 2015, 10:51 am

Here is something I usually use when deciding the colors to use for my next project. -> Lifehacker Post <-

[img]http://i.kinja-img.com/gawker-media/image/upload/s--0nydZ2wx--/c_fit,fl_progressive,q_80,w_636/km0t8ff1rojovsd89dsj.png[/img]

Sahaj - March 27, 2015, 10:53 am

This might be helpful to you mate - <http://flatuicolors.com> Hope you like it. :)

