Killa, can I transfer my prize? As I have a lifetime license to another crypter, and I'm not using crypters or planning to for a while, anyway, and I'd like someone with a use to benefit.

However, the winners have been drawn by using random.org, making it completely random who wins, despite the fact that the original post said the winners would be picked by which signatures are first seen on random forums.

In Mindfreaks post, the prizes were simply lined up and assigned to members who were picked via random.org.

By the way just wanted to point it out, I don't really want to complain.
It's great to have such contests on here, so keep up the good work ;)
It does seem like you are complaining. Winners were selected THEN each prize was attributed a number. For each winner we generated a random number to match the prize number.
