Tyler the Creator???????? - March 31, 2015, 11:53 am

I think he own both sites because when you hit log in on the phisher is just redirects to the real log in for HF.

Nah i mean like if you hit log in and don't type anything it redirects you to the real log in page then you type in your shit

Shxtdown - March 31, 2015, 11:57 am

I don't think it's a phisher, a thread similar to this one was created before.

Yeah.. but it doesn't even allow you to log into "hackforum.net", because once you hit log in it instantly redirects to the actual site (this) to login instead of on that site.

No, you misunderstood. If you click the login button on the main screen it redirects you to the hackforums.net log in. It redirects you before any info is entered etc hackforums.com redirects you to hackforums.net instantly where as hackforum.net doesn't instantly redirect you. You have to click something before getting redirected. The variation may be the reason why someone might suspect it might be a phising site.

My Grandad Bombed Asia - March 31, 2015, 12:00 pm

Omni owns this domain and all links on it's homepage redir to this domain. /thread

daves3c - March 31, 2015, 12:02 pm

Ok guys thanks for the confirmation.

Omni owns both of these sites, dont worry.

It aint phishing.

Mr.Peanut - March 31, 2015, 12:08 pm

I don't think it's a phising page but it's odd because when I get redirected, I have to login in (even though i'm signed in). If anything, when I click login or any of the links, my account should be signed in.
