Thread: [\(Maximum's Exchange\) \[H\] \$230 BTC \[W\] Paypal](#)

Maximum - April 3, 2015, 1:57 pm

Looking to get this exchange done, not going first, only dealing with trusted users, reply here or PM me.

I exchange Interac, Paypal, and BTC daily.

If the title is my Paypal to BTC, I don't go first unless I know and love you.

Old exchange thread with over 100 vouches:

Ask any trusted exchanger on here, it's just like Paypal, if you get your banking information stolen and the person who stole it sends out money via Interac you can go to your branch and request the money to be returned since you didn't authorize it, it happens which is why I require ID when dealing with new users for Interac-E transfers.

My Father works for RBC, I am telling you as a FACT Interac e-transfers CANNOT be reversed, here's the proof on the official website, www.interac.ca

Cole ??? - August 23, 2015, 11:31 am

Interac can be easily reversed. I've had it happen to me before. If someone pays with an interac that isn't theirs it will be reversed within hours.

Yes it's saying that if you're sending a legit payment that you authorized it can't be reversed/cancelled. If I go to my bank telling them it was unauthorized they'll investigate it and ultimately make a decision, which can most definitely be reversing the payment back to me

It's just a precaution I take, everyone that has sent me Interac on this forum I either completely trust or have had there ID shown to me along with the name on their bank account and institution. I'm not willing to risk receiving payments from stolen bank accounts and having my bank account closed temporarily for investigation.
