No you didn't. You may have used a script that got that score, but you didn't get that score. I know for a fact because I compete in FBLA word processing competitions & the California state record holder sits around ~170-175. If you were over 200 you'd be on a full ride scholarship to any college you want and a new FBLA record holder.

Thanks. I could probably squeeze out to 150WPM if I did this enough & memorized the words, but three/there is the only word that got me slipped up. Indian took a nanosecond longer to process than it should have too.

he Anti-Cheat test was a bitch for my 140+ WPM Test though.

Edit: Just broke my record again

bloodhawkbh - April 5, 2015, 8:37 pm

(Apr 5, 2015 08:35 PM)Wonder Woman Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thanks. I've got 140+ WPM multiple times now but I can't pass the Anti-Cheat test. I think it wants me to get 140+ WPM but it keeps throwing me curveball words that are just too hard to type 140+ WPM :/

Yeah, the words in the anti-cheat are definitely longer than the regular competitive one. I capped out at 131 exactly on the AC test.

Wonder Woman - April 5, 2015, 8:39 pm

The hardest parts for these tests for me are reading the words. No lie, I can type way faster than I can write & exactly on par with how fast I can think/talk to myself in my head. It leads me to believe the only factor holding my speed back is just how fast I can read.

If I took the time to memorize the words no doubt I could hit 160+ WPM legitimately; Keeping in mind the world record is around 180WPM

Ohhhh shit. So I did the independent test.

SHOWS OVER FOLKS. I'M #1 OUT OF EVERYONE. LOL

If I didn't get sentence I would have easily broke 150 WPM :/

Enronitis - April 5, 2015, 8:51 pm

I'm content, fuck it.

Wonder Woman - April 5, 2015, 8:56 pm

Just tried it again on a different account to see if I'd get new words(Sentence kept slowing me way down) and it's same words so that's good to know we're all taking exactly the same test

Just got 167 after preparing for sentence(I wasn't preparing/putting my finger on T in anticipation which REALLY slowed me down since the same finger rolls into C right after). I'm not going to get any higher than that other maybe than 1-3WPM

Wonder Woman - April 5, 2015, 9:11 pm

I thought I'd add, something that's VERY important if you want to get your speed above ~120 is you need to "prepare" your next key by moving your finger ahead of time to the next key ahead of time.

Start with just the next letter & then work your way into three fingers on the next key it will press ahead of time. It takes a LOT of practice to do 3 finger prep but that's the only way to get 150+ WPM unless you have really great finger dexterity
