Thread: Blockchain Unconfirmed Transaction

Sliffy - April 6, 2015, 4:29 am

Hello Hack Forums!

I am kinda new to BTC. I just deposited some money to trusted website via BTC and it shows that transaction is unconfirmed.

Q1: Will it be ever confirmed?

Q2: If it will be confirmed, how long does it take?

Thanks in advance ?

1 : Yes it will be confirmed

2 : Depends on the fee you give, usually like 5 minutes

Sahaj - April 6, 2015, 4:32 am

Yes. It'll confirm. Crypto currencies usually take some time to get confirmed.

On average there will be a block found once every 10 minutes. If you paid the standard fee for the transaction then it will generally confirm at the next block found.

Link to the TXID. The standard fee should be 0.0001 BTC for most transactions. Anything lower than this and it can delay the transaction being found on the network for upto 24 hours in some cases.

Yeah, it's 0.0001 fee, I'll just wait I gues...

What is the TXID of the transaction? Is there an unusually high size or a large amount of transaction inputs?

The network is at a standstill at the moment. There's almost 5000 unconfirmed transactions as there's only been four blocks in the past two hours. Just took a look and your transaction is set to confirm not on the next block, but the block after. Might take upto an hour more at most, no need to worry.

EDIT: There you go, your transaction just confirmed sir. :)
