Gouda Takeo is a freshman in high school. (Both estimates) Weight: 120kg, Height: 2 meters. He spends his days peacefully with his super-popular-with-girls, yet insensitive childhood friend, Sunakawa. One morning, on the train to school, Takeo saves a girl, Yamato, from being molested by a pervert. Could this be the beginning of spring for Takeo?

This is really cute but quite awkward.

It actually serves a purpose unlike Accel World or similar.

Accel World's fatty's fattness is extremely relevant. If you didn't understand why, you missed the whole point of the Anime.

Protagonist is kinda dense, but guess it's reasonable since he experienced friend-zone since young. Pretty good anime ;)

No it's not, the purpose is obvious yes, the execution is fucking terrible, there was absolutely 0 reason to have him look like that if the writer himself had downsyndrome.

If he didn't look the way he did, the story would not be set how it is.

I know right? I wouldn't have been terrible.

Thought I should bring up this post this instead of creating a new thread.

I started watching this after this thread was posted and watched 2 episodes and dropped it probably because of the same reason everyone else might have dropped it. About a few days ago however I decided to pick it up again and give it another shot. I'm surprised, I actually like it. I'm currently on episode 16 and while it is a little bit too cheesy I have a feeling something must happen soon. I'll keep watching it, finish it with the hopes that something that will turn the tides will happen. It's way too monotone at the moment. Everything's going way too well. I feel like I'm watching the filler episodes of Supernatural in which the brothers just go on hunting some random ghosts instead of progressing the story.

Oh well, we'll see how it ends. I think there's about 8 days left until the series ends.

So they wait until the final 2 episodes to add a plot twist, the end off the second to last episode on a cliffhanger, really.

EDIT: Just realized, after 23 episodes Madhouse is making this anime, and that explains everything

Guys.. I dropped this at the very first minute, how good it is when compared to Toradora or Shigatsu wa Kimi no Uso?

I didn't watch Shigatsu wa Kimi no Uso but I watched Toradora and well, I enjoyed it a lot but this ? Nahh, it's alright, kind of funny actually at some points but other than that I don't know... I'm yet to be impressed by it.

It's true, the first 2 episodes are kind of hard to watch but after that the story goes on better. Give it a 3 episode try, who knows, maybe you'll pick it up and finish it D:

Honestly, I don't really now what to make of this anime.

My first impression was that the show feels like it was only made to proof that even unappealing, usualy just bystanding characters like the protagonist of this show can archive love and are not forgotten within the shoujo universe. Which would make this show kinda shallow in it's own way.

And yet I find this show quit entertaining and funny.

Definetly worth a look.

Yeah, after watching 20 episodes as of now I can actually say that I really enjoyed this so far.

Spoiler (Click to View) Still, 4 more to go, I still have a feeling something will happen that might turn all this lovey dovey atmosphere around... Things are going way too good. That's not what anime taught me so far. Thanks to Game of Thrones and certain anime I really don't feel safe at all, they'll either break up or something bad will happen to Yamato.

Hmm. I'll try to watch the other 3 episodes that are released as one per day so I won't have to go through all that much waiting for the last one.

I like Shigatsu wa Kimi no Uso more in terms of story and everything (because of the feelz), But I would say in terms of romance Ore Monogatari!! is better than both of them
