Thread: Closing "request for hacking"

SIM-1550131 - April 11, 2015, 11:38 am

This section:

<https://hackforums.net/forumdisplay.php?fid=48>

I recommend that you close this section of the forum. There are so many LQ users there that just ask you "hey hack 127.0.0.1 for me" or "hack this twitter" and its not like somebody will actually hack for them. Isn't this whole section against the rules anyway? 99% of it is noobs asking us to do black hat work for them, either boot someone offline or hack a website, or "payback".

I just personally find this section low quality as hell.

Thoughts? Comments? ?

Real examples.. Seriously you allow this? \(Click to View\)"I need to hack into a Facebook for the password, PM me if you will do it."

"Hey guys, I am requesting a ddos on x.x.x.x"

"For personal reasons I need a Hotmail account hacked"

Trenchguns - April 11, 2015, 11:40 am

I didn't believe you at first, but yea. After seeing the first page, it seems really lq...

Nachfolger - April 11, 2015, 11:41 am

While you might be 100% correct, there will always be threads like those, and closing the forum means people will post them anywhere they can. This keeps it in one place, if you don't like it simply don't visit it. I personally stay away from the whole hacking section, it's full of lq newbs.

justg - April 11, 2015, 11:41 am

And then all of those same threads will spread to other parts of the forum. Closing it down doesn't mean people will stop those threads.

Ooze - April 11, 2015, 11:42 am

Its actually really funny reading these fake sob stories thats these users come up with.

Okay but keeping the section there is giving the allusion to outside parties that we hack for people and they join our forum and post there? If it spreads other places then mods can deal with it but allowing a low quality forum isn't okay, in my eyes.

BlooLight - April 11, 2015, 11:43 am

I don't think it should be closed. I think that LQ threads and users should be reported and get a warning level and if they keep creating LQ threads just ban them. I don't see where else could HQ members post request for hacking. As I said, no need to remove section but remove few LQ users. ?

I know right, and half of them don't know what they are talking about.

No point closing it for the same fucking people coming and spamming the Beginner Hacking section with requests.

It's best how it is.

Raz3d - April 11, 2015, 11:45 am

Maybe it should be merged with Beginner Hacking and disallow requests, idk. But honestly, all I've seen from that section are DDoS requests.

Why don't we fix the problem and not have a honeypot for them all to go to?

Because it's easier to avoid if it's all in one place.

I much prefer it all in one place than it dotted around the whole forum.

I'd prefer it to not exist at all.. ?

Fudster - April 11, 2015, 11:52 am

Eh....LQ noobs would still post these types of requests...It would be nice to remove the section..but then again.

A simple solution would be:

Close section cough new rule: HF is not your personal army, we do not accept hacking requests.

Mods close accounts / temp ban noobs that do this.

Profit???

Not suggesting a new rule so don't get all legal on me, just pondering.

Actually.....I think we do have a rule on that....so yeah.

OT: nope...After looking around I don't think we do. Probably seen it on a post or two.

I honestly don't even see a rule for it, not even on the disallowed blackhat activity page.. ?

I'm against this suggestion. I remember few months ago I needed help to bypass a login. People helped me.

We don't have to close this section, only try to manage it with more rules.

We shouldn't allow that content period.

hope you haven't forgotten the name of the site is 'hack forums'.

in his case, he needed a login bypassed, not help trying to infect someone or something similar.

there's different cases, that's acceptable.

Omniscient - April 11, 2015, 12:51 pm

It's there to be a low-quality area and will always be there.
