There are various ways to spread your RAT stub. One of the most used ways is via YouTube.

You make a convincing video for (for example) a Netflix account generator and put a download link to your stub in the video description.

Try and do this:

Make a youtube video about a free minecraft account premium

Download link in the description

When they download...

Retard navigated.

Okay, all of the above answers are just terrible, although they're right about YouTube.

Make a LEGIT YouTube video, something that offers a REAL program or crack for one, you'll just get a bunch of dumb kids or third world country installs if you make "generator" videos... Think about it, if the person is actually that dumb/desperate to look up for free things or generators, do you really want them on your RAT?

I have a legit YouTube video that gets lots of views and legit positive comments/likes because I supply them with a WORKING crack + my binded file that they don't know about :)

Try something unique and unsaturated, find a program that people want and bind to it

OP just asked how to spread a RAT so the answers we provided aren't terrible at all since the methods work. What you said is true though, you will get a bunch of children if you spread the normal way via YouTube. But I don't think OP would mind that, he could just steal their Minecraft accounts for example if he wanted to lol.

Social engineering. Think of a convincing con to get someone you know to download it.
