Thread: are age restricted products permitted

Who Soup - April 17, 2015, 9:07 pm

I recently asked a question regarding the sales of tobacco products on the forums, which Tony Stark said that it was not allowed.

Are any age restricted items permitted? a good example of this would be alcohol; what if identification is required to purchase?

Also is there policy on items with a questionable age limit such adult toys, condoms, vaporizers, real knives, fireworks/explosives, etc.

I'm hoping that these are all not seen as against the rules, and a explanation of why it would be not permitted would be appreciated.

This is a real question and I hope no one takes offence to this ?

i typed that out, not kidding op....

Forgive me but I don't see which rule you are talking about.

You selling food on this forum is already strange, please don't bring alcohol. Who would want to buy alcohol online ? No offense but this is a stupid idea.

Adult Toys & Condoms - I would assume they're not allowed as it would indirectly fall into Adult Content.

Vaporizers - They could be allowed or not, I'm not sure.

Alcohol - Identification can be faked especially on the Internet, so their could be 12-13 year olds purchasing Alcohol online and you could get in trouble, plus many country customs forbid it.

It would be wise, to not sell it.

Real Knives & Fireworks/Explosives - I would say it's not allowed, because many country customs forbid it.

I think because of obvious regulatory problems I will not allow you to sell something like that.
