

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: UID: 1686379 | Chargedback \$4,95 | USERNAME: Envy N0KD

Ombra - April 21, 2015, 12:35 pm

On March 4th user Envy N0KD paid me for a lifetime license for my Netflix Generator located at <http://www.vendionline.info>

About 10 days after launch I decided to move the generator to a new website of mine <http://www.roguemarket.pw> warning customers with a 5 days long message in the header of the old site and replacing the link I had in my sales thread.

On March 21th I even told to another customer that site was moved:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4699040&pid=45339661#pid45339661>

But user Envy N0KD on April 13th made a dispute against me claiming that item hasn't been received and that site went down after 2-3 weeks.

Screenshoots:

Spoiler (Click to View)

Proof of Payment:

User PMed me providing his personal details (probably the PayPal account belongs to another member of his family)

His profile (now banned) with matching email:

Proof that new site is online as of today:

To conclude... OP chargedback without PMing me even if he has been online recently, also he agreed to purchase a "lifetime license" so assuming that service was really discontinued, he had no right to chargeback.

Fr?sh - April 21, 2015, 12:37 pm

Legit scam report

Sad to see so many people scamming for pocket change

Ombra - April 21, 2015, 12:39 pm

(Apr 21, 2015 12:37 PM)?Sweatshirt? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Legit scam report

Sad to see so many people scamming for pocket change

I'm sure that the user didn't notice that domain was changed, but he still chargedback without PMing me.

Ombra - January 17, 2017, 9:30 am

I consider this dispute solved. Status will be updated shortly in DDB aswell.