How does this work? Does the address reroute to another?

It's a simple process.

It's really easy, simply look it up.

Basically he will run a program that generates public and private key combos at a very very fast speed until it generates one with the string you want. Sometimes it takes forever. You can see mine in my sig. Google bitcoin vanity address generator for more info.

It all depends on your graphic cards.

Tommy Shelby - April 27, 2015, 11:12 pm

6 Character vanities take about 18 hours for me, and I use a gtx 750 Ti GPU. but 5 characters doesn't take long at all, maybe like 20 minutes.

?Blue ?Angel - April 28, 2015, 8:24 am pm me with your name of choice and i'll generate you the adress, you can add it then to your wallet, i use blockchain and use "import private key"

you're welcome, guys if anyone else wants, if you can, give me 5letters, the 6 ones take a little too long (will do exceptions though if you can't think of a good 5letter word ?)

CMD ? - April 28, 2015, 2:29 pm

PM'ing you about one I want. :D

Avunit? - April 28, 2015, 3:31 pm

Please be careful using this service, there is nothing stopping this user saving the private keys for the addresses he has generated and then stealing any BTC you may move to it in the future.

Holy crap. That's true.

I guess I'll go generate my own.

SMART THINKING, COWBOIII.

Can someone link us to the tool that does this? ?

spidum - April 28, 2015, 4:09 pm

Guys I feel like I have to say this as a public service announcement. No matter what you do, OP will ALWAYS have access to your wallet. HE is generating the private keys and sharing them with you which means that all he has to do is pop them into his wallet and he has ALL of the BTC in your wallet. That is why services like this dont exist, because of the constant fear of the creator reclaiming their wallet. Now Im not sating that blue angel will ever do that but I think it should be said that it is always a possibility.

Oliver Sykes - April 28, 2015, 4:11 pm

Nobody trusted it when I tried to offer this service a while ago. Anyway, have fun with your addresses.

I left my pc on while I went on a week vacation for my address, heh. Couldn't get gpu generation to work.

Since my GPU gen doesn't work, I'll tell you how to use the cpu.

You can get flags with "vanitygen", I believe.

I should have mentioned I have Windows 7. Does that change anything?

Edit: Nvm I figured it out. I made a shortcut to VanityGen.exe and added the arguments "1Address" Working fine now.

You guys don't understand. 6 letter words take a couple days/weeks. For a good computer.

Eh, I think that's a little exaggerated

It took my Core 2 Quad under three days for 1Oliver

With case sensitivity though...heh. Now THAT could take weeks.

I'd have 1Oliver if my gpu generating worked </3
