Thread: Make my index page better?

Syedboyz - April 27, 2015, 2:17 pm

Hi there

Anyone got any ideas on how to make my index page any better.

This is so off topic but this reminds me of like 2008 when I played Gangsters paradise lol

Too much black space.

You have so much wasted space on the page. Try to space the modules out.

As Gasmic has said ,there's definitely a position issue here. Why are there two logon interfaces? Why not increase the size of the login margins a bit more, which would help you align it easier. Regardless, good potential here! I especially like the buttons with the texture.

Looking at the live site right now...

Float divs. Remove the transparency crap you have going on with them. Remove the custom cursor. It looks outdated and makes your site look low quality and unprofessional. Elements definitely need more spacing. The button looks horrible since it's stuck to one of the textboxes. Vertically center the "Make sure you read the TOS and Rules before accepting!" part.

Other than that, it looks decent. As long as it works and is usable, I guess it's good enough. Regardless, good luck with your site. :)
