' Resolve the unresolvable '

Some false advertising imo, can't resolve myself.

We over estimated this resolver. If someone has been resolved before they enabled Direct connections only their IP will be logged so when they do turn it on their IP should still resolver. If they change their IP after it you will need to use wireshark and get in a skype call with them.

IP: Failed to resolve this username, try again!

Anyways, good work. I love the design of it.

Your IP wasn't logged before you turned on 'Allow Direct Connections Only'. Thanks anyway.

Hi, I really like a design and your resolver looks great!

A bit unrelated, I was just wondering why the resolved IP is different from the IP I get from searching on Google (tested on myself). The city is the same but I'm just wondering why the IPs are different, is this a way for Skype to protect their users?

Thanks!

Add me on skype and we will discuss further. My skype is jesseryan92.

You can pull IPs when direct connections ticked.

crushbman - May 12, 2015, 1:30 pm

I just tried it and still couldn't get direct connection IPs

SIM-1472133 - May 12, 2015, 2:02 pm

(May 12, 2015 01:30 PM)crushbman Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I just tried it and still couldn't get direct connection IPs

That's because you weren't resolved before you had direct connections enabled. If you were your IP would be cached and resolved.

?????s??? - May 12, 2015, 2:09 pm

Should I allow direct connections only or does that make me easier to resolve?

I'm having trouble understanding this.

andreasx22 - May 12, 2015, 2:12 pm

Vouch for OP, tried resolving my own Skype and it found my IP in matter of a few seconds.

I recommend you enable it, use a VPN and proxy. This makes you pretty much unresolvable.

Thanks for your vouch! I am glad you liked it.

Legion - May 23, 2015, 4:35 am

Huge vouch. This is one of the few resolvers that actually work now. Got my targets IP in around a second.

Beaners - May 23, 2015, 9:20 am

This says it can Resolve unresolvable names but it can't.

You might wanna change that as it's false advertising.

(May 12, 2015 02:09 PM)??? ? ??? ??? = ?????s??? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Should I allow direct connections only or does that make me easier to resolve?

I'm having trouble understanding this.

First untick it, connect through a vpn or two, then resolve yourself on a few top resolvers, then tick the box and use your usual IP, or other VPN/Proxies if you want the extra protection.

But then it will display the old IP as that would be cached on most of them, Ticking it makes it unresolvable.

OP has just explained this, someone else also said the same thing.

Please read before posting.

Still up and running, the API will be getting changed to make a faster resolve time and greater accuracy!

bigbadboy123 - June 7, 2015, 1:22 pm

nice resolver bro it tried it and it works alot

SIM-1472133 - June 8, 2015, 3:02 am

Updates to a new API to add more speed and accuracy and should bypass 'allow direct connections'. Also added resolve time and it logs IP's in cache.

Very nice resolver i like it.

FRANKIE - June 11, 2015, 11:20 am

Plot twist, you sell this to google for 8mil & retire.

SIM-1472133 - June 14, 2015, 6:17 am

OK GOOD NEWS!

Custom source is almost ready! I will update once it is actually released.

Stay Tuned.

Thanks for all the great feedback on the new source!

selinux - June 16, 2015, 1:54 am

Not trying to sales trash or anything, but, uh, ever hear of a color palette? It would help you. In my honest opinion, your resolver has really ugly colors, however, that won't affect traffic, so glws.

if you have 'allow direct connections only' on its most likely that you have not been cached and couldn't be resolved. You can settle down otherwise ill have to call the mental health clinic on you.

verdictas - June 16, 2015, 5:22 am

Great resolver. Working flawlessly. Thanks

SIM-1472133 - June 16, 2015, 7:02 pm

update I am working on V2 of the source, this should add new features. Will update during development.

SIM-1472133 - July 10, 2015, 7:38 pm

API has been updated and is now bypassing direct connections a lot better.

SIM-1472133 - July 15, 2015, 12:20 am

Website is currently down due to the site being DDoS'd and then suspended. Changing hosts with extra protection. Sorry for any inconvenience.
