Thread: Cheap clothes shopping?

Going on vacation, need some sites/coupons or somewhere to buy some nice clothes.

Need some hoodies/jeans/shirts.

If you don't know of any cheap sites, then recommend me sites with good clothes even if expensive. I don't usually shop for clothes online.

I know a guy offsite who does amazon refunds, charges 30% of what the order would've cost... I know I sound shady being new and saying this, but I'm in a group on FB that he offers many other services on. PM if interestd :)

Didn't ask for illegal shit, asking for legitimate clothing.

For designer clothing i would recommend:

<http://www.farfetch.com>

<http://www.yoox.com>

<http://www.raffaello-network.com/english>

Goodluck with finding clothes!

Depending on how long you have to get your clothing I would usually recommend aliexpress, takes 30 days (UK) but have to get a few sizes up because them chinese think king kong could fit into a size 6 skirt. If not you could use ebay, I found a link on <https://www.facebook.com/10ways?fref=ts> for really cheap clothes that lead to ebay. I picked up a £200 suit jacket for £8 once as there was some thread damage on the inside pocket... so yeah, good luck

If I remember correctly, Jackthreads always has deals on clothing and what not? But they only take credit card xp

Quality sucks there.
Take a look at jcrewfactory, or the Asos sale.

Check out Reddit.com/r/MaleFashionAdvice

Not always the cheapest, but usually you can find where to get fashionable clothes for a reasonable price.

Quality lacks from HM and uniqlo, if you can deal with the quality then forever21 men works too.

There's reddit.com/r/frugalmalefashion

Karmaloop is awesome but its not cheap? I suppose there is some cheap stuff on there but overall its quite pricey for quality clothing

I'm not sure if this site is still up, but I used to see deals from them all the time.
