Thread: How many murders are on HF?

SprayPaint - May 16, 2015, 7:07 am

Sounds like a really crazy question, but seriously? Has anyone ever thought about this? Out of 2.8million members, there have to be some murders.

The definition of murder because obviously you people have no idea what it means...

The unlawful premeditated killing of one human being by another.

"the stabbing murder of an off-Broadway producer"

synonyms: killing, homicide, assassination, liquidation, extermination, execution, slaughter, butchery, massacre; More informal

DON'T FUCKING POST IF YOU'RE JUST GOING TO POST SOME TROLLY SHIT

Bitdefender - May 16, 2015, 7:08 am

1. It is possible for one person to commit many homicides.
2. The average age of the HF member is 13 years old, and homicides are mostly committed by young adults (18-24) Source:

Shot him in his back as he ran away

Cut his wife throat as she put her hands to pray

Just five more dogs, then we can get a soccer ball"
That's what my commander say
How old? Well I'm like ten, eleven
Been fightin' since I was like six or seven

Now I don't know much 'bout where I'm from
But I know I strike fear everywhere I come
Government want me dead so I wear my gun
I really want the rocket launcher but I'm still too young

To feel no pain and hear no tongue
So I hear no screams and I shed no tear
If I'm in your dreams, then your end is near, it's you"

Well technically soldiers don't have authority to kill people. It's just like saying if a guy goes in Iraq as a soldier and he racks up 20 kills, then returns to America, with your statement there you're saying that even in their home land they have a right to murder people - which is wrong. Even overseas they (iirc) don't use lethal force unless absolutely needed. If a US soldier returns from a place like Iraq then kills 20 people in America - they will be charged for each and every kill they did in America. Regardless of their rank.

Seriously? I even included the definition of murder in the OP. Is it really that hard?

Mad76e - May 19, 2015, 8:38 am

Interesting topic..

Sure there might be killers in HF, but i dunno anyone of em would confess in a thread on HF, that's just asking for trouble, and it wouldn't be long until the SWAT was banging on the door..

Fortnite - May 19, 2015, 10:43 pm
