Thread: Regarding G-Eazy

Before everyone that has dealt with G-Eazy, me - being the nice guy I am - am attempting to help him as best I can. From what I've gathered, PayPal limited him and wants him to confirm his identity. Used fake info on PayPal business account so is unable to do so. For some reason, PayPal decided to temporarily hold every payment he sent out, which is probably what everyone that has dealt with him in the past week is seeing. This is not a chargeback by G-Eazy (although he admittedly contemplated exit-scamming), it is an issue with PayPal directly. I've dealt with temporary holds before, and they typically don't end too well. In a group chat with him now, will be calling PayPal to resolve this and get everyone's money back. Keep in mind, I lost $ in this too, just doing this for the better good of HF, as from what I've heard, its a large sum.

Will update as this goes along. Please don't open a scam report for something that G-Eazy has little control over at the moment. Expecting his reply soon.

I can confirm this. Don't freak out guys, I'm not scam leaving or any of that pussy shit. Worst case scenario, you wait until the chargeback is decided. If you win, nothing happens. If I win, I'll refund you 100% in BTC.

Oh I just msged about this, got a payment for a btc to pp exchange done 2 hours ago and already have an open case from paypal for this ... stated as unauthorized transaction.

Anyway it s all on him for not doing things properly , if your doing exchanges and sending / getting lot of payments and all is done from the same account it s obvious this will happen sooner or later :x

It doesn't show as being a temporary hold by PayPal?
