Thread: Who here uses Hummingbird? Or do you prefer MyAnimeList instead?

Dragon. - May 23, 2015, 8:26 pm

Who here prefers Hummingbird over MAL? Vote in the poll above!

Deany - May 23, 2015, 8:27 pm

I use that piece of poop once in a while.

Peanut Butter - May 23, 2015, 8:30 pm

AniList > MAL > Hummingbird

MAL has a lot but I don't really care about a good chunk of it.

AniList has a rating system that I'm in love with, it's also really easy to use and to keep track of airing anime.

Hummingbird is just meh, if I want to talk to someone I'll do it over Skype not some twitter-esque thing.

Ang?I - May 23, 2015, 8:43 pm

Whoever prefers Hummingbird should go ahead and admit to having down syndrome too

CyberStudio - May 23, 2015, 8:45 pm

<https://hummingbird.me/users/fagg> ot

it looks way better than any of the other ones

too bad i dont watch anime anymore

Ciel Phantomhive - May 23, 2015, 11:56 pm

I use MAL, although I don't track or add things to my account. I just like it as a database to look up and read about shows.

Lyrlei - May 24, 2015, 12:19 am

I used to like hummingbird until they decided to shove ads instead of just membership features.

+the ad placement is really bad =.= they should have atleast made the placement good.

Yeah, I think Josh will figure it out. I used to use Adblock for Hummingbird, but I know they need ads to survive.

hummingbird.me/users/anime

I was the first one on HF to really make it popular here, but I stopped using it. I also stopped using MAL. I'm getting too lazy to even update it anymore.

I think my layout for MAL is pretty rad though

Black Reaper - May 24, 2015, 1:39 am

I use MAL and update my animelist once in 2 weeks.

One L?ve - May 24, 2015, 3:59 am

First time I've heard of 'Hummingbird', but no, I use MAL just to keep track of what series I've watched and where I'm up to.

NKVD - May 24, 2015, 4:46 am

I use MAL. Haven't used anything else but by the sounds of things. MAL >

zyvox - May 24, 2015, 6:45 am

I use HB, it's a fun community although the forums are... well, cancer for the most part. But I can shitpost on HB and it's fun talking shit those those suicidal people and then their friends start sending me threats lmao. The interface for updating currently watching anime is really quick as well, and the site looks nice. MAL looks like it was made pre-2000, it's rather hard to find things and there's like even more cancer. I use MAL for finding and reading about anime and checking ratings and reviews, but not for the social aspects of it. HB is much better at that. I never tried AniList, just looks like some combination of the two but since I enjoy HB's feed thing I'll just stick to that.

NexPB - May 24, 2015, 7:06 am

I like hummingbird with the feed to see what other users are watching but MAL is still #1 when I want info on anime.

nitvit610 - May 24, 2015, 7:06 am

I use Anime Planet for the suggestions and looking at the pretty statistics (basically I think I've watched too much) and I use MAL for the nitty gritty stuff. I really hate the UI but I make do.

Leminiscent - May 24, 2015, 8:10 am

The only plus to Hummingbird is the site's social aspect, and even then it's not worth using over MAL.

Houtarou - May 24, 2015, 8:41 am

I just use MAL because it has a really simple listing system and they have a nice database to look up info about shows.

It's not any different from AA.

Chad ThunderCock - May 24, 2015, 11:14 am

MAL, can't get used to HB and the community seems to have terrible shit taste like reddit, filled with neckbeards with the worst shit taste I've ever seen to the point of them going full female logic and doing personal attacks if they can't provide good arguments to defend their point of view.

Although MAL isn't much better but at least there's plenty of reasonable people.

AllanTint - May 27, 2015, 4:47 am

Never heard of humming heard I've always used MAL.

Levi - May 27, 2015, 7:48 am

They both do the same shit, I've just always used MAL.

Miniature - May 27, 2015, 8:12 am

I prefer Hummingbird, MAL looks kinda old.

<https://hummingbird.me/users/Miniature>

I know, I should probably not watch SO much anime but I love it so it's hard not to :P

I'm sorry, what.

I've watched 28 days, and 7 hours of anime.

The same as anyone who's seen Bleach, One Piece or Naruto which is basically nothing.

REKTED BY LOLI GODS - May 27, 2015, 8:28 am

MAL is my thang <3 It's ok I guess, I normally never use it until I got the app which is very useful btw anyone wanna recomend me anime PM me!

Happeh - May 27, 2015, 12:18 pm

Hummingbird is better, more responsive design imo.

hummingbird.me/users/japan

Manyaco - May 27, 2015, 12:21 pm

myanimelist is ten times better

JonBD - May 27, 2015, 12:36 pm

I only use Hummingbird. I'm just too lazy to make one for MAL.

Cloaked. - May 27, 2015, 2:26 pm

I only used MAL here as well. Mainly because I like the simplified way of tracking the things I watched and so on...Also because I didn't really tried out any other platforms.

Bezo - May 27, 2015, 7:26 pm

I use MAL since it has a mobile version. I don't know any others that have this.

Vandie - May 28, 2015, 3:18 am

Dragon, you already know my opinion. Hummingbird is shit and MAL really needs to update the theme but out of the two, I prefer MAL.

AceHaruna - May 28, 2015, 9:24 am

I like MAL more than Hummingbird

bdawg104 - May 28, 2015, 6:55 pm

I like MAL it is just nice and simple to use

Pontus53 - May 29, 2015, 8:30 am

I prefer MAL, simpler in my opinion.

pokemarine - July 11, 2015, 6:08 pm

Never used anything besides MAL, is it worth changing?

At second thought, it would require ages to migrate (myanimelist.net/animelist/pokemarine), can HB import MAL lists?

Aura - July 11, 2015, 7:06 pm

MyAnimeList. Hummingbird is more of a customizable Facebook thingy for Anime I think and I have no interest in that.

resent - July 11, 2015, 7:11 pm

I'm too lazy to update either, but I have accounts on both:

<https://hummingbird.me/users/PCMasterRace>

<http://myanimelist.net/profile/awoo>

Unsure which one I prefer.

Nevieth - July 11, 2015, 7:44 pm

I only use Hummingbird, I don't know why people seem to dislike (close to hate) HB, it seems functional enough for it's purpose.

I do have about 700 followers on it, so that's pretty cool.

Eternal. - July 11, 2015, 7:46 pm

Personally I use both, but am inactive pretty much.

Yes, you can import your MAL list to HB

TubeYouber - July 12, 2015, 8:13 am

BakaUpdates, tbh nothing even comes close.

Ahri????? - July 12, 2015, 8:16 am

I personally use anime-planet to keep track of all my anime or hunt new ones down. The UI just seems cleaner and more professional than other sites.

eubest - July 12, 2015, 3:08 pm

I use only Hummingbird is more intuitive than MAL and updating is very quick.

That's me HB/users/Eubest/

Warbeak - July 12, 2015, 4:31 pm

I use nothing of the sort. I just have a text file with a list of what I've watched. Don't really see the point in using one of these websites

What would happen if ur hard drive became corrupted and ur text file was lost?

I have a 3 TB IOSafe and I back up a fuckton of files every couple of weeks, so if I did lose it I would not lose much. Especially since it takes me like a week or two to finish a series, depending on what it is

Chips Ahoy McCoy - July 13, 2015, 3:16 am

I use Hummingbird because of how simple it is.

Wallenbergs - July 13, 2015, 8:33 am

I use MyAnimeList and Anilist, to check for great anime to watch, I don't update or anything.
