Thread: Tutorial: Learn how to create a button, in 3 minutes!

Jash - May 26, 2015, 6:49 pm

Greetings!

Josh here, a.k.a. Softcore.

Today I'd like to present to you guys a quick and concise tutorial below, and take note that this will go through the following:

Learning the ins and outs of using .Net Buttons

Transforming your coding experience with it

Leveraging your .net expertise in just short amount of time

Thank you very much, until next time.

P.S. If you guys are eager to learn more, feel free to post tutorial ideas below as I might pick out, anytime soon, an interesting one that's both beyond my current skill set yet still overwhelmingly challenging - like this project, for example.

i thought this was a troll thread, i am still not for sure that it is not.

CodeAssassin - May 26, 2015, 7:01 pm

BAhahahahahhahah, you said "create" a button not DRAG if from the fucking designer LOOOOL

Such trolls.. ;p

Can't wait for the next exciting installment of Label creation 101.

Love the fact its a Release Tutorial too :3 classic

(actually brilliant :)

blu3 - May 26, 2015, 7:05 pm

Yeah I'm confused, is this supposed to be sarcastic? Because buttons are a pretty easy concept to grasp.

nathan72389 - May 26, 2015, 7:07 pm

hey, look what i just learned...

what should i do next?

CodeAssassin - May 26, 2015, 7:10 pm

Nice tutorial man

If one can't even drag a fucking button on to the form, how in the fuck are they going to program anything to begin with?

I wouldn't consider dragging a button from a list programming.
