Nex+ - May 27, 2015, 5:07 am

If you could own any group for one whole week which one would you choose and why? What would you do with the group?

TM88 - May 27, 2015, 5:08 am

Red Lions because then I would be Nokia and have all that fucking guap

Then id probably sell it

+One - May 27, 2015, 5:58 am

Probably Red Lions, since it has a shadow, and then i would rebrand it to Titans, if Omni removes the Shadow change when I own it, I want to own Titans, if only James would sell it..!

A.I.mania - May 27, 2015, 6:36 am

What's the point or benefit of having a group?

Realizm - May 27, 2015, 6:58 am

Gee I never thought about owning a group. I mean I've always dreamt about it but... if I could buy one of the current ones, just wow! Uhm, I would love to own either Red Lions, Crypto, or Debug, or The Brotherhood as they all have really great potential. We just haven't seen it yet because RL is inactive, Crypto is new, Debug is idk, and TBH is reconstructing the group.

What about titans, have you considered that, aren't they like the best group on HF and stuff?

'Axel - May 27, 2015, 7:08 am

Specialists all the way, I love their userbar.

Ahri????? - May 27, 2015, 7:09 am

Titans? I've never heard of them... if I owned a group I might change the name to that. It sounds pretty awesome ?

Bobby Trill - May 27, 2015, 7:11 am

None I just wanna be in a gaming group and meet cool people lol..

EMINEM - May 27, 2015, 7:12 am

Red Lions

I like the name and Lions ;)

SIM-888979 - May 27, 2015, 7:12 am

I would love to own AnimeFAN and be an anime FAN. :-)

Thehackerguy1 - May 27, 2015, 7:14 am

Red Lions, it is worth a lot i may sell it. + I will make buy ins for 100+$ each.

So many people want to be in the group you could sell them for $200 and when sales slowed to almost a stop have a 50% off sale for a month. You'd make your money back before even doing the 50% off sale lol.

REKTED BY LOLI GODS - May 27, 2015, 7:34 am

AnimeFan! All the way <3

~Anime

Foundatons - May 27, 2015, 7:35 am

I would have hexicidals, because i like the purpose the group has simple as.

Dean Winchester? - May 27, 2015, 7:36 am i would do red lions

people would probably pay $1k for buyins into that shit lmao

TM88 - May 27, 2015, 8:33 am

According to Omni, iHydra owns that group

Orchid - May 27, 2015, 9:53 am

Null, the members are awesome and I would make it based around Malware Removal.

?ord Frieza - May 27, 2015, 10:05 am

I'd go for Instinct or any gaming group If studio was still up I'd go for a collaboration of the two because those too would be perfect for starting a successful youtube channel.

I'd go for something in that area.

Vinnie - May 27, 2015, 10:29 am

I would vote for red lions but the groups dead and nothing but a userbar and a shadow.

I voted for null because of the knowledge that people seek is within the group itself. The groups setup and if set buy ins for $100 per head it would be packed with members however that'll never happen.

Secondly I would go for instinct because the activity is what makes other people buy into the group, yes I'm talking about money because I monetize groups in a fair manner to earn from them and give back at least something.

Jet??? - May 28, 2015, 2:14 am

Red Lion$

People would pay out the ass for buy-ins just to get the userbar and the shadow effect

Meow - May 28, 2015, 2:19 am probably Instinct or brotherhood ?

Burnzy - May 28, 2015, 2:21 am

CJamie - June 28, 2015, 7:15 am

I'd definitely go with Crypto. I'm currently in the second round of the recruitment, i.e. I'm not a part of the group yet. Not being a part of the group, I don't know what discussions occur. Thus, can't think of any modifications as don't know the inside, But there would be a chance to see what all happens, contribute and learn.

(Jun 29, 2015 07:30 AM)Mael Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why wouldn't you? Owning a group is kind of pointless unless you can get $$$.

It is thoughts like that which make people dislike usergroups. Just because I buy a big ass $7k TV doesn't mean I will make money off of it. But I can still enjoy the entertainment of it. If people thought about groups more like that, there wouldn't be as much hate and groups who actually do something like Titans wouldn't be thrown in with the same stereotypical assumption that group do nothing and are a waste.

It's okay to make money, I wouldn't ever discourage people from making money. But make your group worth something and do something and not be shit. If you sell spots or products and just have the 60+ members vouch that it's the best group but the sub-forum is dead and you don't do anything with the group, it's a waste. You just wasted $7k+ for a few hundred bucks... maybe even two thousand. But now you are hated, your group is hated, and you start drama all because you looked at the group as just something to make you money.

Don't own a group or even lead a group to make money. Maybe that's your end goal, but own/lead it to have fun. Because if you aren't having fun, then you aren't doing it right.

Yeah and I'm happy for you that you make money, but like you said, "I contribute by running active groups for the money." No big deal to me why you get a group or still have one, but at least you do something with it. You make your groups decent where as people who are only about the money and don't care seem to think they can let their groups be shit and make money. Also most usergroups are full of try hards trying to be "HQ". It give me some sort of second-hand embarrassment. So I guess in that aspect I do dislike some.

Grammar is beside the point. Now I do not know you are and I do not really care, but most people who owned groups in the past always held a "I'm high quality you're not" perspective when really they just look like massive tools. It is the main reason I think most groups are a joke. They all just look like elitist circle jerks.

AnimeFAN discusses anime.

Instinct discusses gaming.

The Brotherhood is a Whitehat group.

Null is a hacking group.

Void discussed various topics, I like to think of it as a private SRPP section.

Titans is about having fun and bringing fun to the community.

Specialists is a group of "specialists" in their own fields.

Every group has a purpose :)
