

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Can Ask.Fm be tracked?

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 4:12 pm

On my African American friend's ask.fm and saying a bunch of black jokes under Anonymous.. if he knew it was me he wouldn't be super mad, but he tends to overreact sometimes. Is there anyway if he reports to the cops I could get traced to? I don't want this shit on my record..

Just to make things clear we're good friends.. I'm not a racist dick and we throw racist jokes at each other all the time..

Marshmallow Man - June 6, 2015, 4:13 pm

yeah, ask.fm can be tracked, but they gotta invoke the supreme court law of 420 swag fbi cia

?Hyen? - June 6, 2015, 4:13 pm

Yeah dude you're fucked you better get the next flight to Africa while you can.

Autocorrect - June 6, 2015, 4:14 pm

Black humour is not against the law.

YekiM - June 6, 2015, 4:15 pm

Yes, it can be traced, but not by ordinary users of the site, the administrators will have access to the information.

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 4:15 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:14 PM)Autocorrect Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Black humour is not against the law.

Yeah but he's taking it like a girl and is threatening to tell the cops, etc

I should probably stop now then because I might accidentally break the law and get in some trouble?

Autocorrect - June 6, 2015, 4:16 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:15 PM)Fapple Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah but he's taking it like a girl and is threatening to tell the cops, etc

I should probably stop now then because I might accidentally break the law and get in some trouble?

I say again, black humour is not against the law.

There's nothing the cops can do if it doesn't violate a law.

Also ask.fm won't release personal information to a local police dept.

Nor will the police dept. give two thirds of a shit to actually ask them.

You're fine OP :)

Friendly HF User - June 6, 2015, 4:17 pm

Link us to the ask and we'll answer your questions.

SysAdmin - June 6, 2015, 4:17 pm

Unless it's some super awesome shit that is going down, admin's of Ask.fm won't even be bothered.

It's up to them to seek and track the information, no one else has access to their database and no one else can trace you.

irApeX - June 6, 2015, 4:18 pm

Uhhh... I'm sure it can, but it's not very accurate, it gives you a radius within 50km of where it is, but it's not exactly precise. I've seen it before.

YekiM - June 6, 2015, 4:20 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:18 PM)irApeX Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Uhhh... I'm sure it can, but it's not very accurate, it gives you a radius within 50km of where it is, but it's not exactly precise. I've seen it before.

Thank you for your input on geo IP addresses. Law enforcement can ask your ISP to give the location of the IP being borrowed from the IP pool.

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 4:21 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:17 PM)Squad-3™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Unless it's some super awesome shit that is going down, admin's of Ask.fm won't even be bothered. It's up to them to seek and track the information, no one else has access to their database and no one else can trace you.

Define 'super awesome shit'

He described it as cyber-bullying, when I'm literally just saying jokes

G???????f????s? - June 6, 2015, 4:22 pm

Of course it can be traced. It's a public website.

SIM-2562043 - June 6, 2015, 4:22 pm

I'm pretty sure it can be tracked. Pack your bags, move to Mexico, change your name to Juan and live above a laundrette. GL.

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 4:24 pm

Update:

Shockley - June 6, 2015, 4:27 pm

Are you stupid? No, it can't be tracked, unless the law gets involved, in which case it won't be tracked because you haven't broken a law.

YekiM - June 6, 2015, 4:28 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:24 PM)Fapple Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Update:

Well it was nice knowing you OP, you are going to jail for being in anonymous!

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 4:48 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:27 PM)Shockley Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you stupid? No, it can't be tracked, unless the law gets involved, in which case it won't be tracked because you haven't broken a law.

I think this was the answer I was looking for.

Shockley - June 6, 2015, 4:56 pm

To answer your question even further, ask.fm says in their ToS they do not log IPs, if I can recall.

Also, pretty sure IPs never go in direct contact with ask.fm which is why there has never been a program developed for tracking IPs:

their ip>connection>ask.fm<connection<your ip

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 5:17 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:56 PM)Shockley Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) To answer your question even further, ask.fm says in their ToS they do not log IPs, if I can recall.

Also, pretty sure IPs never go in direct contact with ask.fm which is why there has never been a program developed for tracking IPs:

their ip>connection>ask.fm<connection<your ip

So basically you CAN be tracked but it's very hard to do?

eight - June 6, 2015, 5:20 pm

Don't worry, cops don't believe nig??gers blacks anyway.

lenaos - June 6, 2015, 5:21 pm

I don't think the cops will do anything.

eight - June 6, 2015, 5:24 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 05:21 PM)triworks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't think the cops will do anything.

I think the cops would beat OP's black friend for wasting their time—or for just being black.

Jet??? - June 6, 2015, 5:38 pm

Are people really that afraid to use the word black that they have to say African American? Grow a pair holy fuck waqob - June 6, 2015, 5:51 pm

I don't think they even record the IP's of anonymous users. Because I tried blocking my own IP from sending questions to my account (just to test) but failed.

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 6:14 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 05:38 PM)Jet??? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are people really that afraid to use the word black that they have to say African American? Grow a pair holy fuck

Just trying to be a little bit respectful man..

Chopped - June 6, 2015, 6:15 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 04:13 PM)?Hyen? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah dude you're fucked you better get the next flight to Africa while you can.

Hahahahaha holy fuck I laughed so hard at this, I don't even know why. ?

Havoque - June 6, 2015, 6:16 pm

If you're not invoking a hate crime, cybercrime, cyberstalking they won't bother tracking you. They only put in energy when something's actually important and harming an individual.

Silfy - June 6, 2015, 6:19 pm

(Jun 6, 2015 06:16 PM)Havoque Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you're not invoking a hate crime, cybercrime, cyberstalking they won't bother tracking you. They only put in energy when something's actually important and harming an individual.

But cybercrime CAN be tracked through Ask?

Loser Douche Bag #35 - June 6, 2015, 6:32 pm

Imao isn't ask.fm like dead now? It use to be super popular 2 years ago but site is slowly dying, I hope tbh it goes back again cause I'd love to ask some people questions anonymously.

Silfy - June 7, 2015, 12:47 am

(Jun 6, 2015 06:32 PM)Putrid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) lmao isn't ask.fm like dead now? It use to be super popular 2 years ago but site is slowly dying, I hope tbh it goes back again cause I'd love to ask some people questions anonymously.

I think it's still moderately popular.

Tyler the Creator???????? - June 7, 2015, 1:19 am have u ever slept with a black women?

no?

u racist

Yore - June 7, 2015, 8:17 am

Nahh, can't be traced easily. Of course the moderators have some kinds of logs stored on their database. I don't know about Ask's policy though.

Callofdutypro - June 7, 2015, 8:22 am

Give me there addresses and me and my gang will bust a lock

Havoque - June 7, 2015, 8:51 am

(Jun 6, 2015 06:19 PM)Fapple Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) But cybercrime CAN be tracked through Ask?

Anything could be tracked. You did nothing that constitutes as a cybercrime. I wouldn't worry, but if you keep harassing him (even anonymously) the law can get involved.

iloominati - June 7, 2015, 8:53 am

<http://www.lawqa.com/qa/is-it-legal-to-call-black-person-nice> person

Silfy - June 7, 2015, 9:49 am

(Jun 7, 2015 08:51 AM)Havoque Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Anything could be tracked. You did nothing that constitutes as a cybercrime. I wouldn't worry, but if you keep harassing him (even anonymously) the law can get involved.

Alright, I've stopped now. Thanks for the help.

IntelliJ - June 7, 2015, 9:53 am

If you're harassing him, it's a) a douche bag thing to do, b) not necessarily against the law but if you continue it can be harassment.

Ask.Fm can be tracked. Everything on the internet can be tracked. If the police are really interested in getting you, they just contact Ask.FM with a warrant and Ask will give them your IP, everything you've posted, when it was posted, and if you ever had an Ask.fm account on the same IP they'll send that information, too.

Stop fucking with people.

Bogatyr - June 7, 2015, 10:56 am

Yes, but by looking at the cases where teens were bullied to suicide, the bullies never got caught. Admins didn't give away any information and hope it will be kept that way.

IntelliJ - June 7, 2015, 11:06 am

(Jun 7, 2015 10:56 AM)Çenturioñ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, but by looking at the cases where teens were bullied to suicide, the bullies never got caught. Admins didn't give away any information and hope it will be kept that way.

Completely wrong.

- 1) Bullies are often caught, with charges brought against them.
- 2) Admins will give information away willingly if their site's integrity is threatened.
- 3) This is the government we're talking about. They want something, they get it.

Rooter - June 7, 2015, 11:31 am

(Jun 6, 2015 04:12 PM)Fapple Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) On my African American friend's ask.fm and saying a bunch of black jokes under Anonymous.. if he knew it was me he wouldn't be super mad, but he tends to overreact sometimes. Is there anyway if he reports to the cops I could get traced to? I don't want this shit on my record..

Just to make things clear we're good friends.. I'm not a racist dick and we throw racist jokes at each other all the time..You could probably get traced if he does call the police.

Silfy - June 7, 2015, 2:45 pm

(Jun 7, 2015 11:31 AM)Rooter Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You could probably get traced if he does call the police. I've stopped now anyways, I don't think he'll contact authorities.