Legion - June 7, 2015, 4:18 am

Title says it all really. What are your goals this summer?

Can be anything really like projects, learning new skills, drinking more, going out more etc etc.

Mine:

- 1) Master PHP
- 2) Completely build a website from scratch using PHP

Th3PonyWizard - June 7, 2015, 4:19 am

You are worth knowing? You're the person who got me to start learning website development back when you ran the hacking help desk. You know, learn how to build a website before you learn how to break one.

GreenTea - June 7, 2015, 4:24 am

I'd like to start a website where I sell digital goods :)

Royal ! - June 7, 2015, 4:26 am

I know supplements won't replace food. I'm just watching my calories and making sure I hit my protein goal. I'm trying to lose 2 pounds a week or so, which is a safe rate in my opinion.

I wake up every morning weighing two pounds less. You can lose more than that in a week and still be "safe". No matter what, you'll hit a plateau. Might as well take advantage of that period where weight loss is more drastic.

So that means just cutting more carbs and calories out then? Since my sport season ended my loss has been slower, so I've been trying to maintain that level of activity.

Have you heard of intermittent fasting?

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hzfsaXsV-T4>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GrMITRI5zX0>

Watch the videos on their channel. It's basically eating nothing throughout the day and getting all your calories in one meal. Also cutting all carbs out.

This will help you out dump a slump and get back to losing more weight since your body needs a change.
