Thread: 4Years HF L33T Feedback Thread

Soulmate - June 11, 2015, 9:03 pm

Alright here it is again, my 4th feedback thread, I don't really have a lot to say but there are some things about this site and the community that could use some improvement. Again I haven't been as active on HF but I can still see that things I have mentioned 2/3+ years ago were still not taken care of. This will probably be my shittiest feedback thread yet but if you wanna see some actually relevant opinions read these 3:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4280298>

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=3522604>

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=2589650>

Most of what I've noticed lately is the rise of shit usergroups. Literally every usergroup is exactly the same still and everyone dickriding leaders, and little online gang wars going on everywhere. If it was up to me, I would just not let users buy groups from each other any longer and let people settle with the groups they have now or give them some time to sell it.

I mean I don't mean to talk shit but which one of these groups is actually respected and does something instead of circlejerking? Probably none of them

<https://hackforums.net/showgroups.php>

If it's not bad enough that every group sold out, the members on this site have gotten progressively worse. There is literally nothing good to be sold in the marketplace anymore and every booster/service is exactly the same so there is no reason to bother with those anymore unless you're a group leader and have your own shit

Other than that I've mostly been in AA and the LoL section, both of which are in pretty bad shape like every other section but the mods don't really care, which is another thing I have feedback for. I don't really see the point of all these mentors and section moderators if they don't delete or move posts at all. If you look in the secondary sellers and premium sellers market, half of the posts are made by normal members or l33ts that can't post in other sections. On top of that, there are dozens of threads that are posted in the gaming sections asking to sell accounts for that games and they don't get removed or noticed.

anyway that's pretty much all I have to say, not a big fan of this site right now but who knows, maybe in a few years it will be decent again. big shoutout to my only few friends left on this site: av, saturday, and clique and of course my big boy hex
also renium

I mostly meant to post this just to keep my tradition up but if you think I left something out but want to ask me anything just go ahead but this thread probably won't get a lot of responses anyways

keep it real hf

Mentors don't have moderator access to any of the sections you mentioned. I do agree with your point about sectional moderators, some don't seem to moderate the sections like they should anymore.

I also feel many of the mentors are no longer around like they should be. Might just be me.

In my 5 years on here I agree that groups are one of the biggest problem. There's a couple that seem fine and do okay but a few out of 12(?) doesn't seem right. Albeit if a members paid $7k for a group who the fuck am I to tell them what to do with it.

Nice feedback, actual feedback for once rather than a life story so GG.

I'd say that a fifth of the Mentors are still around, still not as many as there should be.

Ah okay well I didn't know but if they can only edit posts in the Lounge sections and rules section I don't really think there should be more, but maybe more staff members instead or more section mods for active forums in the marketplace. I never really use the lounge anymore though so I wouldn't know if you guys need more mentors but if Omni would pick me up on that I'd totally be down

Even if people pay $7K for usergroups on a forum that could go down completely at any time, I don't think it's an excuse to use the group for a month then flip it after to make $500 in profit or just sell it because they're tired of it

But thanks for the respect, this feedback wasn't so good but my other 3 have been on point
