Thread: I haven't watched Anime in years, and I finally have a day off. Recommend me one!

S?mbra - June 16, 2015, 2:56 pm

I'm a very busy person, with a full time job and a full time girlfriend.

Today's my day off and she works late, so I get an actual day to myself!

I haven't actually watched anime in over a year. I think my last one was Fox And Spice, which I enjoyed a lot.

Other anime's i've enjoyed are SAO, Death Note, stuff like that with a good amount of violence and romance in there.

Any suggestions? I'll watch whatever the first person suggests.

Lyralei - June 16, 2015, 3:01 pm

if you havent yet, go check out btloom! or log horizon, they are both great if you liked sao :)

Please don't be fooled by its soft moei appearance, its one of the most twisted anime I've seen.

Tokyo Ghoul if you still haven't seen it, most people enjoy it. ?

You should go for Tokyo Ghoul, seems perfect for what you're looking.

Agreed. You should watch Tokyo Ghoul if your into action with some extra bonuses in it.

Clannad spoilers inside, don't open if you plan on watching it.

N-no that's not really even close. The alcoholic part has nothing to do with the death part at all. Besides they're two different people. The alcoholic part just adds to the background.

Ha! I have no idea why but I have a very bland personality when friends aren't around, or if I'm at work I'm very professional.

Everything changes when I watch a movie or anime(depends on the anime). So if its one that's destined to bring water works, I must prepare!?

Wow, says a lot about the lasting effect that anime has! I recommend Madoka Magica to people all the time because of how misleading and dark it is.

newbielol - June 17, 2015, 2:02 pm

Trust me. Once you watch all the three seasons (Original, New, and BorN) then you will move on. It will get old.
