Thread: Durable earbuds?

zilo - June 25, 2015, 7:40 pm

I bought like 5 pairs of earbuds this year and I decided that it would be best if I bought 1 good pair that will last for longer. Does anybody knows a good model I could buy (preferably with a discount) ?

Thank you!

no apple please

Every try skull candies?

The Godfather - June 25, 2015, 8:02 pm

Apple ones are pretty good. Waterproof as well.

pretty good sounding pair of headphones for the cash and pretty durable 3 months and going strong

Or since it seems like youre willing to spend a good amount these are really good due to being able to change the cable if it breaks.

sound quality is amazing on these for the $100

RainSpider3000 - June 25, 2015, 8:42 pm

iFrogz have always worked for me, don't break easily at all. I have slept with them on almost every night.

Skull candies earbuds are probably The best bang for your buck.

Used these for the last five years, taken them on countless trips and thrown them around. They're now my gym earphones, great value and quality. Sound is acceptable in sub $20 earphones.

Thanks for the suggestions!

Always buy earbuds that you can push into your ear with that rubber thing.

I've had a pair of Yurbuds for like 3 years, they get thrown around and sat on constantly.

They've held up to 2+ hour workouts in 110F conditions well, the sweat and strenuous activity doesn't phase them.

They aren't the best sound quality in the world, however, but they're like $20

MihawklisBae - June 27, 2015, 11:14 pm

I have had these pair of earbuds for quite a good chunk of time they sound amazing in my opinion and not too expensive. (Was going to link but can't) They are called Brainwavz Delta IEM Noise Isolating Earphones, Apparently only Newegg has them as they are no longer on sale by brainwavz on amazon.

TBE ClockWork - June 27, 2015, 11:19 pm

I have had the same headphones for about a 1 1/2 years. (Standard Apple headphones) I use them everyday almost and they seem to be pretty durable I suggest them and they are probably really cheap as well!

Doesn't even know what they're called

Thinks he's knowledgeable to make a recommendation

You should check these earpods out. I bought a pair a while ago and they're good as new. The reviews say it's the real deal so I guess haha

5h1t_warrior - June 28, 2015, 5:58 am

you should really try some earbuds from awei i got like 5 different ones and only 1 got broken.

amy santiago - June 29, 2015, 9:21 am

I highly recommend Bose ie2

amazing sound quality and with that rubber thingy it stays in your ear forever

Lawsuit - June 29, 2015, 12:40 pm

I had the Klipsch s4i for a while before I broke it. I contacted support and they sent me the Klipsch r6 no questions asked.

Been using these almost everyday for over a year now.
