Thread: Let's learn - looking for a partner

~$ocio - June 28, 2015, 11:51 pm

It's been a while since I have actually worked on programming and web hacking, I've been working mainly on money making methods.

I feel like partners are the best way to learn because they can act as motivation and accountability partners.

I am looking to find a partner who is in my time zone or close, I am on the east coast of USA.

I am looking for someone who wants to start from the ground up on learning things FULLY so that we can master these concepts, languages, tools and use them when variables and real life environments occur. You can only learn so much from a simple tutorial.

I want to work on

Website development and security - Code injections and prevention, mapping out vulnerabilities, doing recon and information gathering, privilege escalating and chaining attacks, finding zero days

Networking - Fundamentals. Protocols, OSI model, TCP/IP model, working with servers/clients, handling distributed packets and multiplexing, security (DDoS and such).

Programming - Low level, High level, Scripting, Logical thinking, pseudo code. Everything from HTML to CSS to Java to Python to PHP to C, C++, C#, VB, .NET... EVERYTHING!

Computing - CPU Arch, Processes, UNIX & Windows in-depth, Malware analysis, Reverse Engineering, Hardware and troubleshooting.

If anyone is interested in working with me and becoming skilled than let me know :)
