I'd like to express my sincerest apologies for the inconvenience. Our mail server is not cooperating with us at the moment, and we're doing our best to fix it. Yes, you can also find the password to log in to the VPN through the "change your password" area. Have you tried reinstalling the client?

im running on mac and you guys dont have a .dmg to be running the client so what i do is open the config file which configures the openvpn, i run openvpn, and it says the configuration may be incorrect which may cause a problem and then it just doesnt work

EDIT:

yeah i want a refund. i wanted to get a vpn to start using it immediately. this is a waste of time because i can go and buy a different vpn and start using it immediately. please send a refund, i dont want to waste anymore time on this.

Go to our knowledgebase for a tutorial on how to set it up with Mac, our client only runs on Windows. You will have to use Tunnel Blink.

Mail servers have been fixed, if you didn't receive a welcome message male a ticket and I will send it to you asap.

Vouch for this service, got access earlier today - and account was activated within a few minutes, with @OP replying quickly to my support ticket. All servers seem to be running fast, and the only one I have had issues with is the Netherlands server, which I have seen is currently under a ddos attack (source: twitter), otherwise, I am getting consistent speeds, just below what I would normally get on my home connection. Do not hesitate to buy, great service :)

Our last client was having issues with the update server, yes dropbox. We are trying to resolve this issue with dropbox, but for now we have updated our downloads page to include our beta client and OpenVPN installation options for the GUI and our servers. Please see 143vpn.com/downloads for more information.

It is intended to be that client, we fixed the issues it was having with the update servers and has more features than the beta client.

We are scrapping what you downloaded in V2 and are going to recode the entire client from scratch. Should be out in a few weeks.

My honest review over 143VPN:

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

This VPN has been the most reliable VPN I have ever used.

There has been only ONE downtime, since I've used it, and it was when the server I was using was undergoing maintenance. (Literally 15 minutes.)

This VPN has also been the fastest VPN I have ever used.

There has been a few problems with the new client, (WAS A BETA). I have notified Eternal about this, and he responded very quickly.

I will give it a 9/10.

Why only 9/10?

It could use more locations, but overall, it is the best VPN I have ever used.

Thank you, Eternal.

I'd personally would like to see locations in, London/UK, Switzerland, and Texas.

London/UK location, because I know a lot of people from the UK, and it would be greatly used, by a lot of people.

The Switzerland location, because of their privacy laws, and all over is a great location.

And Texas, because I also know a lot of people from Texas, and I would use the f*ck out of it.

I am sorry you are having issues, hopefully, this will help you in the future.

You are able to port forward, please try this again. You probably are port forwarding an already forwarded port which cannot be used. Use one between 10000-50000, and make sure Windows Defender is disabled. Make 100% sure. Check again, even if you remember turning it off. Make sure it is completely off. 99% of issues involving port forwarding are because people forget to do this.

Also, do not port forward more than once per port, it bogs down the network which ultimately affects you.

Create a ticket, if you have done so already and I have already resolved your problem then great! If not, I am more than happy to help you.

Unfortunately, I cannot quickly get to all customers for support on this thread because I do not monitor it for support inquiries as they are off topic, due to this being a sales thread.

But don't fret, we have a ticket system that is fairly easy to use and we respond much faster there. You can submit a ticket in the ticket system here:

Open a ticket with your location and ping to the server in question. The issue may have been with the port forwarding abuse that we fixed today.

We can handle the traffic, the issue wasn't bandwidth related. When we can't handle the traffic we add more servers.

Yes, our client has that capability but it is very simple and can be done with any VPN. Here is how to manually do it with CMD: <https://143vpn.com/knowledgebase.php?action=displayarticle&id=9>

Why are you so surprise? 143VPN is a VPN company. You're telling me other companies don't ask for your name, address, and phone number? When registering on 143vpn.com, in our eyes, you are a client, not a HF member. We treat our clients equally by doing our best to provide support and enhancing performances.

also use 143VPN.com/panel to port forward.

For some reason i needed to change my password on the website, working now

Esme - August 25, 2015, 1:28 pm

I've been using the service for a little over 3 weeks now so I figured I'd write a short feedback note.

Decent service overall, you get what you pay for. Had some port forwarding issues the past few weeks because apparently someone was abusing the feature, other than that it's been pretty solid aside from the authentication server issues over the past couple days.

I've noticed a few minor issues, one being that the Sweden location doesn't work for me. Sometimes it just won't let me connect and when it does I'm not able to open any web pages or get any network connectivity. Second being that port forwarding doesn't seem to be working for Netherlands 2, even though it shows up on the panel and works just fine for Netherlands 1 and all other locations that support port forwarding.

If you're still taking location suggestions, a Swiss or Russian location would be nice. Romania could also be an option, and could also be another DDoS protected server if you went with Voxility. Not sure of their data retention policy though.

All in all the service works for the most part and is well worth the price, especially when there's a coupon for lifetime.

Second being that port forwarding doesn't seem to be working for Netherlands 2, even though it shows up on the panel and works just fine for Netherlands 1 and all other locations that support port forwarding.

If you're still taking location suggestions, a Swiss or Russian location would be nice. Romania could also be an option, and could also be another DDoS protected server if you went with Voxility. Not sure of their data retention policy though.

All in all the service works for the most part and is well worth the price, especially when there's a coupon for lifetime.

Sweden and Netherlands 2 issues have been resolved. Thank you for bringing them to my attention. I will consider a Swiss and Russian location in the future. Thank you very much for your detailed feedback!

Decent service overall, you get what you pay for. Had some port forwarding issues the past few weeks because apparently someone was abusing the feature, other than that it's been pretty solid aside from the authentication server issues over the past couple days.

I've noticed a few minor issues, one being that the Sweden location doesn't work for me. Sometimes it just won't let me connect and when it does I'm not able to open any web pages or get any network connectivity. Second being that port forwarding doesn't seem to be working for Netherlands 2, even though it shows up on the panel and works just fine for Netherlands 1 and all other locations that support port forwarding.

143VPN clients are usually using port 1194/UDP to access our VPN servers, some users have experienced issues because this port has been blocked in their firewall or ISP.

143VPN is now offering a solution, you may access our VPN through port 443/TCP which is always open. 443 will be the default port from now on.

Updates commencing now.

Half of the servers are not down 2 are due to ddos attacks and France isn't one of them. They have been removed, update the client. We will add them back once they are back up. If you could give us more information besides "FRANCE DDOS IS DOWN" we would be able to assist you better. For fastest results, I recommend making a ticket so we can see what your account is.

Make an account and request a trial. 143VPN is the easiest VPN on HF to port forward, people usually miss a step or 2, or try to port forward a port that has already been assigned.

Some idiot is using dns recursion exploits to find servers for a booter, hosts responded with shutting down the DNS essentially.

We do not allow scanning servers for vulnerabilities unless they are your own servers, and not for booters.

We do not log, but can and will find when someone is violating our terms through other means.

We have deleted all servers with this issue. Expect a major update soon, or a few minor updates in spirts.

Update the client and you will get all of the servers available that haven't been affected, the others are under investigation and may be added back or replaced soon.

Vintel - October 22, 2015, 5:22 pm

A new update is now available. The installer and the update function is now working exactly as it should.

Unfortanly some locations have been removed but thats what happends when you break the TOS.

When one customer is breaking the TOS he's destroying for everyone else. Think about that. You dont just fuck up for yourself. You fuck up for others too.

You even fuck up for Eternal. as he is the "owner" of the servers. He is the one that has to take care of any legal issues.

Kind regards,
Vintel

Eternal. - October 22, 2015, 5:27 pm

Nothing I haven't dealt with already. Thank you Vintel, the client has been updated and now shows which servers are online and offline. We have removed the servers we are possibly going to remove as they are down, and we will be looking into adding servers in completely different locations and perhaps a bulletproof IP changing server.

Well, that explains a lot of connection issues. There's always one fucktard that ruins it for everyone.

Unfortunately, that one fucktard seems to exponentially multiply on HF.

The result - awesome services like this have to waste their time repairing needless damage.

143 is one of the few services that actually has a service and customer support that is continuous and HQ.

I am sorry you feel this way. We just got kicked from one of our biggest datacenters due to someone excessively abusing our service. Due to the nature of our service, we do not log, we couldn't stop the client soon enough or provide evidence against them.

This has cost us a lot of time and money. Not that you should worry about that part, what you should know is that we are in the last parts of our recovery as we have just found a few new data centers with the locations we require. Ironing out the last details.

We have just added two new servers with port forwarding, Netherlands and Tokyo.

Hope everyone has a great day/night.

Make sure you only have one TAP driver. Make a ticket or post in our support thread with a speedtest and ping, location and any other info. Our VPN is not slow, unless something is misconfigured or you are really far away from the location, which shouldn't be that much of a difference. Also keep in mind VPNs slow your speed regardless due to encryption.

It was removed, looking into finding another Australian data center. Already gone through a few, too many abuse reports and people breaking our terms of service!

Do not:

- Bruteforce
- Torrent Copyrighted Materials
- Run DDoS tools through our bandwidth

Ports will open, please open a ticket.

I am sorry you are having issues, hopefully, this will help you in the future.
You are able to port forward, chances are you missed a step.

1. Make sure your port is unique and between 10000-50000.
2. Make sure Windows Defender is disabled. Make 100% sure. Check again, even if you remember turning it off. Make sure it is completely off. 99% of issues involving port forwarding are because people forget to do this.
3. Make sure you are listening to the port, you can use our listener here:
143vpn.com/downloads/listener.exe
4. If the client says "Processing Request" instead of port forwarding, disconnect from the server and port forward again or use: 143vpn.com/panel

Give us the following:

What server specifically:

What port specifically:

Imgur upload of a screenshot of your Windows Defender settings:

Imgur upload of a screenshot of the port listener and canyouseeme.org while connected to the server:

None of the offshore servers work on OpenVPN? And the client sometimes says connected but its not.....

The service for this vpn has been beyond horrible. While attempting to use 143, it's maybe worked 2% of the time. When I first created a ticket about this, it was deleted. With no request from me, or without any word from the website. Even further, the aforementioned ticket isn't 'closed', it simply isn't even in their system anymore. Here is an email I received after I created the ticket for confirmation.

[Image 1]

As you can see here:

[Image 2]

I created a new ticket with an entirely new subject after I discovered my previous one was deleted.

[Image 3]

After my response, I never heard from them again.

My problem lied in what another poster had brought up as well, an authorization failure. Thinking this must have something to do with the credentials, I attempted to change these as well. Only to be faced with further errors.

[Image 4]

No matter how many times one would try, they would be given this as a result. I mentioned this in a new response, but still have not received any news back on the issue.

Furthermore they don't allow you to attach anything that has any type of file extension in your ticket. There is a attachment button, but it's useless. You can't attach .txt, .jpeg, .png, .nfo, etc.

Wrapping up, this was a poor choice on my side. I shouldn't have put so much trust in a website that had such high claims. Out of their many locations, only half of them were online, and that would only be if the service wanted to work at that time. The reason I came to 143 was because I had been having an issue with my TAP driver, before them I had Horus. In my eagerness to get working I dismissed the driver issue and switched to 143. Little did I know that 143 would provide their own host of issues. Since my problems have arose, I've switched back to Horus because I've had to figure out how to solve the TAP driver as a last resort. Dis-vouch for this service and a definite vouch for Horus.

Edit: I cannot post images, if you would like to see my proof please send shoot me a message on skype. Skype: aurothic.

Hi,

Your images seem to be broken. Also, I understand the attachment button has limited functions. While it's inconvenient, it would be nice if you could send a pastebin link (.txt) and/or upload your images to an image hosting site like imgur.com for the time being.

I appreciate your feedback. I understand 143VPN has been experiencing technical difficulties for the past few days. We'll do our best to limit such inconvenient experiences for our customers.

I have had this VPN for around a year now and am just getting around to this. I think I made a correct investment by buying 143VPN to be honest, whenever I have felt uncomfortable about joining a gaming server I am able to quickly apply 143VPN and be semi alright. Although the speeds are great (brings me down 5mbps for up and down) I have found that it is a transparent VPN. I am not sure if this is due to some exploit using JS or exploiting my browser but I have found that it may be transparent. Other than that I would say it is a pretty good VPN and I do not regret purchasing. Also, they need to work on their website xD

I know this isn't a support thread and I apologize but when I try to open the .ovpn files on my mac here is the error that I receive

"Installation Failed: In the OpenVPN configuration file for 'Australia' at line 13: The 'log-append' OpenVPN option is not allowed when using Tunnelblick."

Is this a known issue?

You asked for a refund 3 days ago and I have been asking you to provide details for 3 days of who you are, I don't have access to the VPN through HF accounts. Sorry I wasn't fast enough for you, and yeah the client is in beta, and is being rebuilt. All you had to do was install the TAP driver through OpenVPN and the client would have worked. It says connecting because it cannot connect because the TAP driver isn't installed. OpenVPN will correct this issue, install it and then connect.

I am having the same issue. I have just installed OpenVPN from their website(<https://openvpn.net/index.php/open-source/downloads.html>). Did I download the wrong client maybe? I don't know where to download from your website. I go to client area but there is nothing there except usage details and information about cancelling/upgrading my subscription.

Any help is appreciated. Thanks ?

The download location is given in the setup email, it is 143vpn.com/downloads

You can choose our client or OpenVPNs client. Both have different client files.

You didnt understand his question, he is talking about passing your VPN Traffic on the port 443 and TCP to make it looks legit because school does have restrictive firewalls which doesnt allow other ports than normal web surfing ones.

Example:

He would be connecting to your VPN using the host 178.56.21.174 on the port 443 using a TCP Socket and his school wouldnt block it.

EDIT:

Are you aware French servers are actually located in the USA(Unless the IP has been routed for another datacenter after being first used for USA servers.)? and only two of the VPN Servers does work and they are "France" and Australia.

Thank you. No, you cannot connect to TCP 443 at this time, however, we will be adding this very soon.

As for the French server being located in the United States we will investigate whether or not this is true of our server.

We have added a few new servers and updated others.

Locations added:

New Jersey
Los Angeles

We have also reset all ports on all servers. You will need to reportforward your ports. If you have any issues let us know.

Did we respond with generic answers or not respond until we banned you? Which is it? Our generic answers answered your question, we do not open ports for customers usually, this is due to it being simple on our panel. We responded with information to help you troubleshoot your port issue.

We have only banned 2 customers in our entire history unrelated to chargebacks, the reason for the ban is harassment. If you harass and insult me or my staff for any reason your account will be considered for a ban if the harassment was unwarranted.

We would have gladly helped you had you not been rude and immature in your ticket to us. ?

Cyclone007 - April 15, 2016, 5:23 pm

Following up, I do NOT recommend this service. Absolutely terrible experience. Initially, they kept me from using the service because their system didn't recognize that I had paid. Now the password they provided in the email isn't allowing me to connect to their servers. Took them too days to respond stating what I already knew in regards to two separate passwords. Extremely slow support and frankly, terrible service. Definitely no vouch from me. Now I've requested them to refund me, which they probably won't do, but I probably won't know for two days, seeing as they take two days to respond to support messages, unfortunately. Quite disappointed.

This issue would be caused by you buying another subscription under the same account instead of paying off your previous invoices. You now have 2 subscriptions, one overdue and one active. Your new username is your username+1 so "username1" and your password can be managed in our system.

Edit: Just looked into what I think is your account. It doesn't work because it's suspended due to a chargeback.

Just wanting to point out that the newest config files seem to be looking for a few files in the wrong place.

Mine weren't finding my ca.crt file, or my login information. I had to open the configuration and manually specify it. This is of the latest Tokyo file, and I believe the Chicago file as well. I haven't checked the others.

Or perhaps there was some issue on my end that caused it, who knows. I'm using OpenVPN, not the client provided by 143VPN.

Strange, the config files should automatically find the CA file if you placed it in the config file location along with the others, and as for the login information it usually has to be specified every time you login with the OpenVPN client but our client saves it.

Aurora - May 15, 2016, 7:00 pm

One of our major server providers has cancelled all of our servers due to excessive copyright infringement abuse. Due to this, we have to make emergency updates. Please bare with us, as we have some cool locations coming to replace them.

You can download what we have updated so far here: 143vpn.com/downloads

Eternal. - May 15, 2016, 8:10 pm

We have updated a lot over the past 2 days due to the cancellation of a contract with a provider due to abuse. We replaced these servers with servers I think will be more in demand by our customers.

What locations we have servers in now:

Sweden
Switzerland (Swiss)
Romania
United Kingdom DDoS Protected
Chicago DDoS Protected
Los Angeles DDoS Protected
Netherlands DDoS Protected

We will be adding, already purchased just waiting for them to be greenlighted for setup:

Turkey
Egypt
India
Russia

A Russian server with port forwarding has been added to 143VPN!

Aurora - May 18, 2016, 3:06 pm

Stay tuned. We will be getting a new client soon. ?

Eternal. - May 18, 2016, 4:39 pm

We are in the testing phase of a new client and will be updating all VPN servers soon to include TCP.

The new client should be available this weekend, most likely tomorrow.

Aurora - May 21, 2016, 6:57 am

A new client is coming. We're always doing our best to improve your experience with 143VPN. :)

Eternal. - May 21, 2016, 4:15 pm

The client needs graphic updates before we can set it up, then it will be released.

The new client has been released. It is not 100% finished, but in reality, nothing ever is perfect and can always use updates.

I present version 1 of the 143VPN client: 143vpn.com/downloads/client.zip\

As of this announcement only UDP works. We will be adding TCP very shortly.

Aurora - May 22, 2016, 6:40 pm

Feel free to give us another suggestions on what we can do to improve the client. Thank you.

Dilated - May 22, 2016, 10:46 pm

There was an issue with our port forwarding script which would cause a cut connection upon opening a port for your account. The issue has been resolved. We will be updating to a more advanced port forwarding panel in the near future which will allow you to manage your ports better, instead of simply easily opening them.

We are sorry for any inconvenience this caused,

Connect to the VPN first, then use CMD and type "ipconfig" the IP4 address is your internal address that you will use on 143vpn.com/panel

Then you enter the server and port you want, and it's done.

I can vouch for this vpn, I have been with this vpn for around 3 years now (2014) and most of the time it has had amazing service. For a minute it was glitched out but a month after it was great! Now with their new and improved servers and new software nothing I have used really comes close to it, and I have tried many VPN's. Also, the security is great on their end but I would seriously recommend getting Absolution for a complete security experience really. Only problems I had is leaking WebRTC and my DNS leaking which you can easily fix. Anyways, I got lifetime for $25 and I am glad I spent that. Thanks Eternal for the great vpn huge vouch!

Your issue is either:

-TAP driver isn't installed, or too many are installed.

-You bought 2 packages and the first one is suspended and you aren't adding a "1" after your username.

Or something else, but those are the most likely. Give us the logfile.tmp in a PM or ticket or on our help thread and we will be able to help you further.

Your account has been setup automatically and an email was sent upon the BTC confirming with instructions.

When you pay with bitcoin, coinpayments.net waits for the BTC to confirm before marking the product as paid.

Edit: Took 4 confirms for coinpayment to notice it was confirmed.

Not showing I paid on your site still.

Coinpayments has to confirm it, then the API sends a confirmation to my site. It takes a few minutes, and you should definitely have your invoice marked as paid now. If not let me know or open a ticket.

Port forwarding is one of the features of 143VPN, you can port forward from 143VPN.com/panel

We don't leave all ports open, which I think is what you want because it would cause major vulnerabilities to our servers and our users.

No, we do not allow torrenting on our servers, they limit our service dramatically due to constant DCMA reports and huge bandwidth usage.

Check the logfile.tmp in /data and it will tell you what the issue is. Most people who have this issue haven't logged in correctly. Go to Settings>Account then add your data, which is different from the website login information. All info you need to know is emailed to you.

Check the above reply. Also, don't change the port settings on your client as that will mess up your connection. We only use port 1194 and 443 for openVPN. When you open a custom port, you don't enter it into the client.

(Aug 4, 2016 03:43 PM)That Guy Maxim Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why does it just say "Connecting..."? Tried restart it and such.

Hello That Guy Maxim,

The clients log isn't as reliable as the logfile itself.

If you are having issues, check the client folder under /data and open the logfile.tmp file and copy it's contents and paste it in a ticket to us here: <https://143vpn.com/billing/submitticket.php>

The first thing you want to check is if you entered your credentials under settings>accounts. Remember the VPN password and the website password are different and your VPN password was emailed to you. Then select TCP or UDP and choose a server, then click connect.

Note: Do not alter default port settings in the client.

If the client still isn't working the second thing you will want to is make sure you have the TAP driver installed. Go to the client folder and go to /bin, then run as admin deltapallWin64.bat or deltapallWin32.bat depending upon if you have a 32 or 64 bit system. Then run as admin, from the same folder, addtapWin32.bat or addtapWin64.bat depending upon if you have a 32 or 64 bit system.

Make sure you have the latest version of .Net installed on your PC. Also, installing the new Windows update may help you with this issue if you haven't already done so.

It seems this is a bug some users are experiencing, but not all. We've found what it is and are looking deeper into fixing it, and update should come out shortly. Use the OpenVPN files if you need to use TCP as it does not affect UDP connections.

Also, make sure your UDP.xml and TCP.xml files have been updated recently. I don't know why they wouldn't have been updated, but perhaps something is blocking the update on your system?

If so I can send you the updated files...though if you redownloaded them you should already have them.

Hm, you shouldn't be possibly having the same issue as before as the bug was corrected. Please demonstrate it in a picture, gif or teamviewer.

Dont really like the product. Some of the servers are down and others just redirect you to another server.

Now if you try to portforward, it keeps chaning the server so its really hard to get it to work.

Ill retract my complain if the problem gets fixed.

They don't redirect you to another server, that is the correct server and IP. Different websites have different IP update intervals. You can check different sites and it will say you are in different places with most IP addresses that have been changed, since they travel and haven't been updated.

I replied to your PM, there was no downtime for any US servers according to my uptime monitors and they are all able to be connected to, nor have I received any other reports of connection issues.

Eternal. - September 11, 2016, 9:14 pm

Our port forwarding system has been updated and all ports were reset. Simply go to 143VPN.com/panel to reopen the desired port.

Russia has been permanently (maybe) removed due to new Russian logging laws that require a server to retain logs for 1 year.

I've had a few people with this issue and it is caused by one of 2 things, the TAP driver being the wrong version or having multiple installs of it, or you try to connect when OpenVPN is still connected or your computer thinks it's connected.

If you have everything configured right then even at our worst moment you would be able to connect to most of the servers.

I suspect you bought a package before and didn't renew it, and purchased another. If that is the case, add a "1" after your username and change your password.

Either that, or you are using the website login and not the VPN login. They are separate.

Only thing besides that that I can think of is something is blocking your connection, such as a firewall or antivirus.

Yes, all of our locations are high speed unless in exotic locations, which at the moment we have none that are low speed. If you have slow speed it could be the server is under high load, which in that case choose another server. Feel free to open a ticket as well, and we can provision another server in that location.

We will test and change out the servers that have been detected, however, if you use Netflix without deleting your cache and cookies, you are going to end up getting flagged.

(Oct 29, 2016 01:08 AM)ZookeGames Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yep, literally bought this for the soul purpose to use netflix but cant even do that, it was working now its been flagged as a proxy and cannot watch anymore and half of the servers i try to connect to just wont connect with this VPN, + the website really looks tacky and unprofessional, probably not the best purchase

LA1 for example, over a 100/25 connection without VPN:

Netflix works: (Says connecting, showing log to show it is connected. Strange bug we are working on in the client where it doesn't say connected all the time.)

Speedtest: [\[IMG\]http://www.speedtest.net/result/5756557399.png\[IMG\]](http://www.speedtest.net/result/5756557399.png)

VPN servers get flagged, when we find out about it we switch out the IP address. Feel free to open a ticket with your report, we will be monitoring the Netflix situation as they have been getting harder to get around.

(Oct 29, 2016 06:29 AM)xStealthFox Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have this, but I get the error saying: "Unable to load data." when I try to use the VPN.

It could mean a few things, one being the server is down, which not one is right now, or a file is corrupt. Redownload the client if you cannot connect to any servers, this means a file was corrupted either during download, or a file was altered. Do not alter the files or it will not work.

It could also be a TAP driver issue, such as the wrong driver being installed, it being outdated or more than 1 is installed.

If you think it's an issue with the client, try OpenVPN's.

(Oct 29, 2016 09:54 AM)ZookeGames Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) me too, not working very well at all
See the above responses.

Edit: Just had a user PM me saying he couldn't connect. He then PMed me saying he fixed the issue, which was Malwarebytes blocking the VPN. Make sure if you have Malwarebytes, a Firewall of any kind of an Antivirus to turn them off or configure them correctly to run with the VPN.

Just got a PM about a database leak, and apparently, people are wearing signatures with the download link to the leak.

The leak is over 2 years old.

With that said, Sweden has had it's ports reset so you will need to reopen them and Romania is under maintenance. More to come shortly.

Hi Eternal, sorry if this is out of place. I am looking to purchase a new VPN, I have extensive issues with multiple other providers that only provide me with a .OVPN profile to import as the system I use the VPN on a fairly complex in the way that when I connect remotely it will bare an unusable amount of lag. I recall using a different VPN that had its own client (like yours) and it was fine, however I do not want to purchase a lifetime plan to find out the whole lag issue occurs.

Would it be possible to be given or purchase a 24 hour, 1 hour, or damn even a 30 minute test so I can go ahead and see if it runs as it should? I would greatly appreciate that, thank you.

We don't allow it because it would increase the load and risk of the servers and lawsuits from copyright lawyers.

We could, but we would have to increase the price to cover the overhead.

Romania and Netherlands are back online with port forwarding, they have been significantly upgraded.

The website was updated as well, however, the update broke the cart and theme so we will be working on that soon.

Upgraded Netherlands and Romania settings and ports had to be reset. If you need open ports on these servers, you will need to port forward again.

Since we started the limited lifetime sale, HF has saved the most money of every place we have advertised it due to HF being the only place we advertise the $15 code. The stock is going quick, once we sell out we will no longer sell full lifetime access to our service anymore. Get it while you can.

And for you skeptics like myself, no we are not going out of business and trying to sell as much as possible before we do.

We are just getting started and have had customers for over 2 years with lifetime accounts.

Eternal. - April 15, 2017, 8:06 pm

If you are having issues port forwarding please check your settings. Make sure you are port forwarding in the panel after you connect to the VPN so you can get your internal IP address. If you don't, your ports won't work.

Not too many people have issues with it, but some do and I have had 3 people with the same problem ask me in the past 2 days.

Our knowledge base has a lot of information in it regarding what you need to do, step by step. It isn't hard at all, just make sure you get the correct values and it should take less than a minute.

Hey, i have a problem with french server, i can't connect to any teamspeak server.

Can you fix this Thanks.

RAT Support - April 20, 2017, 4:21 am

So from what I have checked out so far this vpn is amazing if you live in usa/Canada but other than that its not great from my point of view from the uk, both uk servers are ddosed protected but you can only connect to server 1 and there is no internet connection when your on it, the french server connects and you can browse but can't connect to things like xbox or teamspeak which may be a port forward issue on their end seeing as theres no config for it on the panel.

If the uk server was working I would never need to look for a new vpn since when i tested the canadian server on xbox it was an OVH server and some kid tried to DDoS me which ended up with him doing nothing.

Would love a uk ovh server with DDoS protection but meh looks too good to be true.

Conclusion: If not in the eu and want ddos protection then this vpn is for you unless you want 400-500ping from eu xD.

If the servers get fixed or I can find out the issues I will update.

The French server is locked down, not all ports are open on DDoS protected servers. This is a security measure, not a flaw, at least in our eyes. Teamspeak has proxy settings, free proxies would be able to connect you past our port blocking on our DDoS protection without opening a hole in the protection. Our UK servers are from Hydra which we found to be better when we tested them both, however, we plan to add another UK server in the OVH datacenter based on your request.

As far as ping being that high, could have something to do with the mitigation we have been doing on recent attacks.

Open a ticket as the servers you seem to have are either old, not from 143VPN, or support made a mistake when updating the servers that I cannot verify, recreate and have heard no other complaints about. We don't have a server in Switzerland and haven't for a while for instance.

The warning you see is due to the auth method not being the standard single user auth, but we have a way of authenticating many users.

"cipher with block size less than 128" and "sweet32 attack"

This would apply if you used a VPN server with that used less than 128 bit block sizes for packets, the smaller they are the more vulnerable to the sweet32, or Birthday attack they become. 143VPN, however, does use 128 bit block sizes, so you should not be seeing messages about it being less than 128 or anything about a sweet32 attack, even if there was one.

Please, if you are trolling us please just leave. If you are actually seeing this, yet aren't able to connect to any server then I wouldn't rule out something on your PC being infected directly and interfering with the connection. Open a ticket and we can verify it.

Regarding your connection, if you open a ticket with your log files on 143vpn.com I'm sure support will be able to help you.

Legitimate inquiry. How are you providing a "no logs" service, with these lines in your terms of service?

Quote:Offending content or users are suspended from our network, usually as soon as they are discovered, although we will always inform you when and why any action has been taken.

Pornography is prohibited on all 143VPN servers. This includes sites that include sexually explicit or hardcore images and/or advertising Found here: <https://143vpn.com/billing/terms-of-service.php>

In order to suspend an offending user, you must keep logs to determine which user offended. If you went by traffic volume, you could very easily wind up suspending a legitimate user. Seeding Ubuntu or other linux distros looks very much the same as seeding the newest blockbuster.

(Jul 9, 2017 02:11 PM)Shoe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Legitimate inquiry. How are you providing a "no logs" service, with these lines in your terms of service?

Found here: <https://143vpn.com/billing/terms-of-service.php>

In order to suspend an offending user, you must keep logs to determine which user offended. If you went by traffic volume, you could very easily wind up suspending a legitimate user. Seeding Ubuntu or other linux distros looks very much the same as seeding the newest blockbuster.

We don't log, but if the FBI comes with a warrant investigating such allegations they have their ways of looking at traffic. We wouldn't have given them logs, but we would comply as that is a serious offense.

Traffic volume isn't how we would judge it, nor do we care about traffic volume. We've suspended 0 accounts due to torrenting, however, we reserve the right to inspect the network.

Delete the program and redownload it and make sure you have the latest version of .Net installed.

If 143VPN were to have community support with our staff, where would you all prefer it? A chat system is h as discord, or a forum? Or something else?

xfitz54 - July 28, 2017, 10:28 am

I have the latest version of .Net installed and I redownloaded the program and still nothing. The problem is occurring on both my laptop and my desktop and I know it isnt a wifi problem since I tried it on a different wifi and still got the same thing. I noticed that udp doesnt have the problem unlike when I do tcp.

i did tried that as well as per the support guys advice but yet the issue still there. whenever i connect it shows connected and then the sent process shows sending packets but receiving decline and its always on zero.

Even if it shows connected within few seconds it goes to waiting for server response mode and thats it.

Based on your logs the issue is local, Tunnel Blink appears to be having an issue with your network or something else during setup. If you have anything regulating your Macs network like a firewall I recommend you turn it off and try again. The VPN works fine on Android and on your PC, but your Mac is having issues. The logs you gave me do not show a VPN error but a Tunnel Blink error, several of them.

We can try to help you with suggestions for your MAC. Please post further support related inquiries and responses here: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4721967>

Use Tunnel Blink, they have a tutorial on site on how to use their client and we have one in our knowledge base as well.

Sites currently down, however, but that isn't affecting service. It should be back up shortly.

You must be using the incorrect login information if you are getting that error and have downloaded the latest version. Open a ticket if you still get the error, and check under "Products" to see what your login information is if you haven't checked it as we reset all passwords about a month ago due to a database update.

Our servers are being cycled out and we are changing to a new vendor. Things will speed up as I am now back from family business and will be working with support and hiring additional support for 143vpn shortly.

In the last 2 weeks the website and servers have under nearly constant attack and servers have been abused as if it was intentional. Most of the DDoS protected servers were fine, but those without would give an auth error. (If it was fully offline it wouldn't give an auth error) This slowed down and messed up some functionality. If you have opened a ticket, made a payment that didn't get added or your account was suspended due to a payment issue and it doesn't show for your account please open a ticket or open it again if the problem remains.

I assume the attacks were due to me being gone. Even some of our social media accounts have been spammed constantly by various accounts. Not sure what PM spam accomplishes aside from being an annoyance...

I've updated the servers and all are working. We will begin adding new servers in the United States, and various other locations based on a recent user vote. If you have suggestions feel free to post them here. A new update to the GUI is being tested and will be released soon.

I apologize if I seemed to be ignoring anyone via PM or otherwise. If I came online it was for a moment and when I saw an issue I asked most of you to open a ticket and asked support to check for tickets. I did not intend to ignore anyone, I've been gone due to another family member becoming terminal and spending holidays with them.

Anyone who has an active time based subscription may open a ticket and I will give you 2 weeks to make up for time lost and 2 extra (1 month total) as an apology.

In the last 2 weeks the website and servers have under nearly constant attack and servers have been abused as if it was intentional. Most of the DDoS protected servers were fine, but those without would give an auth error. (If it was fully offline it wouldn't give an auth error) This slowed down and messed up some functionality. If you have opened a ticket, made a payment that didn't get added or your account was suspended due to a payment issue and it doesn't show for your account please open a ticket or open it again if the problem remains.

I assume the attacks were due to me being gone. Even some of our social media accounts have been spammed constantly by various accounts. Not sure what PM spam accomplishes aside from being an annoyance...

I've updated the servers and all are working. We will begin adding new servers in the United States, and various other locations based on a recent user vote. If you have suggestions feel free to post them here. A new update to the GUI is being tested and will be released soon.

What are you downloading? Where? There isn't anything available for download that is that old unless you were talking about the client, which updates itself.

I just updated the files again and added 3 servers. All servers available are working. If you are still experiencing issues, it may be an issue with your account like a payment issue. If all servers are failing it's not a server issue but an account issue or driver issue. Please open a ticket or post in our support thread at the very least with the log. <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4721967>

Phase 1:

We will be adding more port forwarding locations next, along with a new update to the client itself.

Looking at hiring another member. All servers are up if they are not working, I need a log file so I can see what is causing the error. Also make sure your files are up to date if you are not using the 143VPN client. They were updated yesterday, some were offline due to abuse and were replaced promptly when I noticed.

Now when I check for an update, v1 is the latest version?

Anyways, just use OpenVPN, works perfectly for me on some servers (most don't work probably maintenance, Singapore and Russia work perfectly for me)

It's real disappointing its taking so long to get me up and running I really need the services. I apologize for the inconvenience, there was maintenance with my host but I don't think that affected it but I cannot replicate the issue so you should be able to get in. The VPN service itself has remained online, you should have received an email with all setup instructions.

When a server is no longer working, check for new config files. IP's get blacklisted and changed frequently.

Hello,

I'm a lifetime user of your service for like 2 years now, you are not going to shut down the service anytime soon right?

As 143 pretty bad right now very low server list only like 2 europe servers and they are not really fast on France I've got really good connection yesterday night at like 43MB download [I have 100MB download without VPN] and had a really low ping which very good for me for games but today I did get on france like 1MB download speed and 250 ping, connecting through the VPN client.

I hope you are not going to shut down the service but Just start to Improve It much more and add plenty of servers and stuff like that.

We are not shutting down. Quite the opposite. We are reevaluating our locations, the current ones should be there indefinitely. Replaced when necessary when blacklists or what not come. We are also using better servers. We were mitigating an attack on France this morning, so it slowed down but didn't go down.

We will also be changing our pricing model, services, and support. I'm not saying this from a marketing standpoint, but if you want a lifetime account I highly recommend you get one before we no longer sell them. As I said, pricing model will be changing.

This last week we have changed web hosting to a much faster server with more resources to prevent it from slowing as it did before. The removal of the previous servers was done due to things outlined in our terms as service as abusive. The datacenter we were using had to be changed, so we pulled those locations.

I'm sorry the client is giving you issues, usually, it's due to corrupted/changed or wrong information being inputted. Also, issues arise with drivers, firewalls, AVs and of course if there is an issue with a server. In any case, open a ticket and we will be happy to assist you.

If you don't like our client, you can also use the official OpenVPN client:

<https://openvpn.net/index.php/open-source/downloads.html>

In our Knowledgebase, there is a section called Getting support for your issues with the article How to create a ticket properly that is a good starting point for most complaints and issues anyone might have.

Most people with vague issues complaining about our service I assume many of you have been asked and perhaps paid by other VPN competitors on HF. I'm in a few chats and have been in many in the past or have been told about them where these things happen. I want to personally thank you for bumping my thread if this is what you do.

There is something called "LOGS" you can just copy it and send it via ticket in the website if its with connecting, also if the client don't open then you have issues with your pc as its firewall or .net framework etc... , we just can make the client stable, but when the issue is with your system its your issue not our issue, cause everything is working well, and i suggest you to use the Legacy version, till the new version will be released.

Version 2 of the client is being reworked, it will be released soon and is in beta. There was an update to the auth server (changed servers) that caused issues for a block of customers during the transition. It shouldn't have, but it did affect some customers as there was a change in DNS.

Everything is resolving 100% to the updated DNS so no one should experience the issue anymore.

Opening a ticket and giving us the log files is the best way to get help when you cannot authenticate since we cannot see your accounts based on your HF profile. I just answered all tickets so those who did ask a question regarding auth, I have replied. There aren't any issues with the service that show how an auth issue could be received from our end. One of our servers was being attacked and had the attack mitigated about 8 or so hours ago which could have caused issues for a little while, please check as this is no longer an issue.

I have been with these guys for like 2 years now. At the start they were freaking great.

Last year after a w10 update it stopped working (Ticket #449977) where the support is pretty much "We don't know" and pretty much try to stall you asking the same log over and over again. (It's the typical issue of staying stuck in "Connecting..." as you can see other complaining). This ticket was logged a year ago and a couple months ago. I logged in today to my surprise the ticket still open, do they even manage the tickets at all? Any sensible person would have closed it after a month of no reply, oh and btw the issue still the same. This on a freshly installed W10 on the latest update. Using a different VPN now that also goes over the TAP Adapter and it works, so it's not my system /shrug.

As far as open tickets going unanswered, they close after 1 week of not being responded to by you or us. We have one open ticket right now and it's an offer, not a sales or technical question.

That makes it even worse. Since he can see that ticket and perfectly knows that I have provided this information that he's saying I didn't.

With logs showing that I have re-installed the TAP adapter several times but still has the balls to say that.

And no they didn't help me, they pretty much said "we can't help". So no, for a service you PAY and it doesn't work and then support says they can't "fix it" then you are done. If then you have Support even come up and talk bullshit then at that point you have lost ALL of my respect. This issue was logged back 1year ago and guess what, the ticket was still OPEN and waiting a reply from "support". I made them a favour and closed it when I did my initial post here. If you aren't on W10 then it's a good VPN but don't expect it to work on w10 and the support is fking awful.

I'm the 143VPN client v2 programmer, and it works fine on windows 10 ! , also i can't see tickets all i do is programming and helping customers, there is a new version coming up and its finished just waiting to publish, test it and PM me if you still have the problem, anyway respect our staff, cause if they don't want to help you they wont reply to you ! , and its my first reply that i said whats your problem and i don't have your logs but in the new version many common issues were fixed.

This domain is not authorized to be using WHMCS? Did you forget to renew your license?

Fffdaddy - August 21, 2018, 6:42 am

Is this a dead project? No one can respond to support tickets since your WHMCS license is invalid.

nenadv - August 25, 2018, 12:15 pm

whats up with this, i wrote a ticket 2 weeks ago and no respond. 90% of the servers doesn't work

Where's the proof of that?

No actual proof but look at the facts.

1. Owner has not posted since July 17
2. No support tickets answered since at least the 17th of August because the staff can't access the website since the admin panel/billing system since the domain is not authorized to use WHMCS

And the owner is Botting his online time so his activity does not count.

Hi, i. Very interested in buying, and also is it possible if i buy many accounts and resell it here in my country, here in philippines the vpn we use that we pay for 5$ a month is super slow, it has a speed of 4mbps maximum,

Would it be possible if you give me a 2hour trial to test if its compatible here, im only going to use it on my android, thank you

We filtered messages and we are working on improving our services all servers are up.

1. We are working on improving our services

2. We have been busy as i said in no.1

And the tickets will be answered asap from now, open ticket with your problem, spamming the ticket system lead to terminate your service.

We don't have reseller program atm, but you can buy 5 accounts then sell it, account per user, more than 1 user connects from the same account your account will be terminated.

All servers are up, ports have been cleared, please reopen the port that you need.

I purchased the product, opening a ticket with my associated PayPal transaction ID, and the status of my purchase still says unpaid.

I'm not able to connect either. I need to know as well.

nenadv - September 19, 2018, 3:05 pm guys, what version are you using?

im using v1.0 and i have 5 servers. is that ok?

V1 is Ok, but can you connect cause none of the openvpn files i'm using are working.

Can't help but think this vpn is going down the pan, no reply from Eternal in ages something definitely isn't right here.

i can connect on all of them except bulgaria, and i only need bulgarian one ?

Fffdaddy - September 20, 2018, 11:57 pm

I wonder where Eternal is trollfarmer404 - September 22, 2018, 4:20 pm

Tickets not answered more than 24 hours and can not connect to panel to config port forwarding. get error cannot connect to database

-b*Pawn*Z- - September 24, 2018, 12:14 pm

I'm not able to connect either and cant reach Eternal also. Weird man.. He is usually on top of things from my experience. Hope he is ok!

goondu - September 30, 2018, 3:42 am avoid this vpn

it was shitty to begin with

Eternal. - September 30, 2018, 6:38 pm

Due to unforeseen events, I will no longer be running 143VPN or it's service. It is now for sale.
