Thread: Upgrade Problem

Omniscient - July 6, 2015, 3:36 pm

It seems that the Instant Payment Notifications I get from Coinpayments isn't working right now.

I've contacted them. All orders since yesterday will need to be manually filled if you paid with Paypal through Coinpayments.

If you paid for a sticky through the payments.php page you should be fine. This appears only to be directly related to Coinpayments.

Please be patient while I try to get this fixed. If you paid for an upgrade in the past 48 hours and you are not upgraded please PM me the transaction ID and the PP email you used to pay.

Thank you.

Charlemagne - July 6, 2015, 3:38 pm

It could be because of the invalid blocks issue. That seems to be afflicting most BTC sites right now.

Well, this is a pretty big BTC problem!

Omniscient - July 6, 2015, 4:20 pm

It's also screwing up Coinpayments Paypal passthru too.

For now I've disabled upgrade page entirely because manually double checking everything sucks. Oh well.

Everything has gone to the shits, that sucks.

Well good luck on getting the issue with your payment processor fixed asap.

I'm sure it's another unwanted inconvenience to deal with along with losing out on some potential profits.

Mastery - July 6, 2015, 4:26 pm

This is a hassle. You should hire someone to do the 'manual' work (not an HF member, but an actual employee).

Or just wait till the issue is resolved. It would be much safer.

I think quite a few donations would be needed to do that.

When were they upgraded? They could have been manually approved by Omni before he closed the Upgrades page.

Omniscient - July 6, 2015, 5:02 pm

It's still disabled and I manually upgraded the ub3r for you.

I can't fix the problem per se other than to report it to Coinpayments and to also wait for the Blockchain attack to stop.

You can see the very obvious problem here:

<https://blockchain.info/unconfirmed-transactions>

Even worse is that CP will cancel a transaction if it doesn't confirm within 2 hours. I just had to wait 6 hours for one BTC payment to confirm. So it's all a mess right now. The entire Bitcoin infrastructure is being disrupted.

But he's saying the payment went through... he's not talking about nothing manually, i know for ub3r you need acceptance.

Tommy - July 6, 2015, 5:59 pm

Upgraded myself to Epic yesterday but I'm having troubles finding the transaction ID

Omniscient - July 6, 2015, 8:07 pm

I think it's becoming resolved. So for now I've enabled upgraded and award buying again. We'll see how this goes.

If I'm not wrong, you need to be a member for 2 days and have at least 10 posts. Your country also has to be on the whitelist to upgrade with PayPal.

You obviously figured it out.

Even if you want PP it takes you to Coinpayments first and there you select the Paypal option. You may need to scroll down. It's normally down a bit on the right hand side and for some reason I don't believe they use the Paypal logo for easier spotting. But it's there if you're in one of the allowed PP countries like USA,UK,CA, AU, DE, FR, and a few others.

Z3r0D4y - July 8, 2015, 2:30 pm

Works fine for me :)

Upgraded yo ub3r just fine through BTC.
Dont know about Paypal though.

Blazin - January 11, 2016, 6:30 am

Hopefully this is resolved sooner rather than later.

Armada - January 11, 2016, 7:12 am

I noted the system was slsow to process a purchase the other day, but at least the site gives like 2+hours to process crypto.

Thanks for letting us know, its a possibility this jas to do with the invalid block issue thats been going on.

Problem persists. I have previously had to PM Omni about payments timing out previously, not like yesterday, but within the last 4 months for sure.

Omniscient - January 11, 2016, 4:34 pm

I'd say about 1% of payments the IPN doesn't make it. I think it's a reliability issue with Coinpayments passthru with Paypal.

I just have to get contacted with the PP email and I can confirm the payment and manually set the upgrade.
