Hey there guys, it's been a long time since I contributed to the forum so today I'm gonna contribute.

I going to teach you how you download songs on your phone and import them into your music.app without the use of a computer.

I figured this method by myself because I was lazy to plug my phone on the computer every time there's a song that I want.

We're going to be using the soundcloud app and a tweak called Music Enhancer from cydia.

1. go to apple store and install the soundcloud app.
2. go to cydia and add the following source: <http://cydia.xsellize.com/>
3. install the tweak called Music Enhancer
4. go to your phone settings<music enhancer and enable the soundcloud button.
5. go on soundcloud and search the song you want and press on the little [v] to download the song
6. go to the music enhancer app and go to this directory:
/var/mobile/media/MusicEnhancer/Downloaded
7. click on the song that you downloaded and choose "Edit ID3 Tags" -This will let you edit the song title and artist.
8. import the song that you just edited
9. go to your music.app and your song should be there.

There you go, now you can download and import songs without the need to use the computer. If you run into any problems, let me know what's the problem in the replies so others can look at it if it's solved-or can help.

Or go with something simple such as LinkTunes. Download the songs from iTunes right into the stock music app.

LinkStore and LinkTunes are one of the best tweaks out there.

I don't like LinkTunes because it doesn't have new released songs. Like trap artists release a new song almost everyday. + LinkTunes download isn't reliable/buggy and this method is more reliable because you're doing it on your own.

re install the app and dont use the search feature of the app. Go on safari and google "[your song] soundcloud" and when you open the soundcloud website, press on something like listen on app. When you're in the song page, click on the artist and find the song and download.
