Thread: [Modern supernatural anime \[Need rec\]](#)

Professor Pantsu - July 14, 2015, 8:54 am

So I'm a massive faggot and going to ask you guys for some recommendations. I'm looking for some kick ass supernatural anime that take place in modern times. Something a long the likes of Noragami and Monogatari.

Durarara!! is supernatural and close enough to modern times, maybe a few years ago like 2005 or something. It has a season two that's still ongoing too.

Charlotte is a new supernatural anime that's still airing (episode 3 in 3 days) and it looks like it'll be pretty decent. Looks like this'll be more story-heavy than action, but can't say for sure with only two episodes so far.

As for Noragami, in case you didn't know there's a second season airing this fall.

Already watched the first season of Durarara, just realized I never finished the second. I'll check out Charlotte, and holy fuck I did not know that about Noragami. Looking forward to a second season, I really enjoyed the first. Was the first anime I was actually able to finish in a year.

Already seen Another. I fucking loved it.

Seen them both. Kyoukai no Kanata was a masterpiece imo. Waiting on the second season of Noragami.

Seen them both. Well I haven't finished Psycho-Pass season 2 yet. But more anime similar to those are really close to what I'm looking for.

Trust me, I've been looking for something like them for a while as well. it's hard.

you've probably seen this too, but Tokyo Ghoul is a good dark and horror anime.

I literally just started Tokyo Ghoul yesterday. :P

So far I'm really digging it. I like the whole dark supernatural stuff, Darker Than Black was probably my favorite anime of that type. Not really horror but pretty dark.
