

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Colorado GoPro Adventure.

ItsATumor - July 15, 2015, 12:19 pm

Tomorrow I'm flying out to Colorado, where i'll be biking, hiking, and rafting into Utah. I'll be in the Arches national park, where the giant rock structures are located. My tool of choice is the GoPro Hero4 Black, and I have never used a GoPro on an adventure trip like this before. Does anyone have any tips or tricks for camera configurations, or just general advice on how to capture this trip? I have 3 spare batteries and 176Gb of microSD cards, so i'm open to trying any cool or different shots. Thanks, and once I return i'll make a thread showcasing all the videos and pictures I got using this amazing camera.

Jordy Clasie - July 15, 2015, 2:13 pm already looking forward to it man! sounds like a nice idea!

Cheeb - July 15, 2015, 2:16 pm

Sweet, I love cycling / running. Looking forward to seeing it :)

ItsATumor - July 15, 2015, 3:34 pm

I might try a night lapse of the sky if I can find a secure place to put the camera. I'll mainly be shooting in 1440P at 30fps. When I go rafting i'll put it into 1080p superview so I'll get a 180 degree shot in front of me. I'll also take some 4k stills of the mountains and whatnot.

Charlie.Sheen - July 16, 2015, 8:09 pm

Looking forward to this op :)

itoxiik - July 30, 2015, 12:59 pm

I live in vail... I'm sure you passed through here its a beautiful.. would love to see a video of your adventure bro!

nakz - July 30, 2015, 2:08 pm

Look forward to this, definitely enough storage also. :)