1x for iPhone 5/6

2x for iPhone 3/4

Get them while they last! Only 45 iPhone 5/6 left and 46 iPhone 3/4 left!

Usually these cables that aren't certified

1. Die after awhile
2. Bread easily
3. give a compatibility error after a month

just saying always buy a charger thats apple certified.

xHysteria - July 17, 2015, 8:40 pm

Totally interested in this, I had one of those old charger convertors and my case only has a cut out for the new thin chargers. But, do you ship to Australia? Doesn't say on your page.

Drizzy?? - July 17, 2015, 8:49 pm

Eh, nothing different than buying from aliexpress, etc. (Except for shipping times of course).

Well, that's useful for if you get hungry and you want to snack but don't have actual food in the house

I wouldn't recommend buying one from here, since they are not apple certified. It can ruin your battery, catch on fire and much more

SIM-1966021 - July 18, 2015, 7:09 am

"Apple Certified" chargers generally last longer, yes. However, these do not damage your battery, that is like saying using purell to clean your iPhone removes it's natural layer of oils.
