chazman17 - July 23, 2015, 11:52 pm

Hey Anime Adventures,

My question for you devils is, did any anime make you cry or feel some deep emotion? Deep emotion as in sadness.

For me it would be Elfen Lied, Clannad/After Story, Angel Beats and Chobits. All made me cry and weep. I'm not even kidding. Cried like a little girl in my room to avoid embarrassing myself. After that felt like a huge hole had been ripped in me.

SO, have you?

Regardless, the only anime I've ever cried (only a tear or 2, but still cried) was Code Geass.

Madoka is the only one that comes to mind.

End of dragonball GT when Goku left, and during the Frieza Saga of dragonball Z when vegeta tells Goku the history of planet vegeta as he's dying - but again, this was years ago.

Houtarou - July 24, 2015, 1:43 am

Angel Beats, White Album 2, and Your Lie in April all made me get teary-eyed.
Wondering when i'll come across a show that makes me full on cry.

Cloaked. - July 24, 2015, 1:58 am

I did cry on a few animes. I'm not ashamed by it, they're just that emotional for me.
The last one that made me drop some tears was Plastic Memories.

I had feels watching Toradora and Golden Time, but the real tears came when you pieced everything together in Golden Time. I guess Fairy Tail always gives me that kinda teary feel, just brilliant combination of OST and screen time.

And the only anime that made me feel like negative emotions is Frozen (that one on Netflix). Literally every flashback about the protagonists life made me really mad. And I never get mad...

Montie-Kin - August 7, 2015, 7:26 pm

Only one anime has ever made me shed tears and struggle to swallow (huehue) and that anime is

Ano Hi Mita Hana no Namae wo Bokutachi wa Mada Shiranai (Anohana) for short. I really didn't expect it to be so touching and I felt like a bitch. It was great though. lol :p

Tsu-kun - August 8, 2015, 12:16 pm

Just finished Angel Beats, I honestly never cried, but was so close anyway. For me it was more of a comedic show, enjoyed it regardless!

Never cried as much as i did with Clannad&after story. But an honorable mention would be Blade & Soul, had to pretend I'm sweating because mom was at the same room.. (DON'T expect a good anime, expect a fast cliched story that strangely made me weep)

Nasyr - August 8, 2015, 4:52 pm
