Are u using a Dynamic DNS?

You probably need to portforward once again after you've disconnected / whatever. If you're portforwarding inside the client that is.

When you reconnect do ALL the clients fail to come online, or just some?

When you connect to the VPN do you update the DNS you are using?, and is the update instant?

If only some are not returning online chances are they are either offline, or the binary was removed from the system.

If ALL of the clients do not return online, chances are this is either a routing or port issue somewhere along the network path.

Sounds like a Binary Install Problem.

In this instance, it sounds as though you have gotten beyond the basics, at least to the minimal degree.

It is now time to start diversifying yourself in "Spreading"
