Thread: American Dentist lures Lion out of preserve and kills it.

Bob White - July 28, 2015, 10:58 am

Cecil the lion – the most famous creature in one of Zimbabwe's national parks – was killed by an American hunter who has boasted about shooting a menagerie of animals with his bow and arrow, The Telegraph can reveal.

Walter James Palmer, a dentist from Minnesota, is believed to have paid £35,000 to shoot and kill the much-loved lion with a bow and arrow. The animal was shot on July 1 in Hwange National Park. Two independent sources have confirmed the hunter's identity to the paper, which has also seen a copy of the relevant hunting permit.

The review by Pete B., though... LMAO.

Bos™ - July 28, 2015, 11:01 am

Fuck that fat man. Ill shoot his kids with penis-arrows.

Grin - July 28, 2015, 11:02 am

Fucking rednecks. Failed abortion.

Bob White - July 28, 2015, 11:02 am

All the reviews, people ripping him a new asshole. I honestly hope he gets rectal cancer.

Node - July 28, 2015, 6:15 pm

His patients will boycott his clinic for this and he will end up living in a shelter

NoodleBot™ - July 28, 2015, 6:24 pm

Wow. They make it out like he's such a villain? He paid money for the right to it. These events for money like this usually go towards funding for keeping the animals alive in general as a species.

News is fucked, bad news sells better ratings and papers. And in this case clicks.

Balding - July 28, 2015, 6:25 pm

This is so fucked. I hope he gets killed by a fucking lion.

This was an ILLEGAL hunt. The money he paid was to bribe the people he needed to.

Lions are endangered and this lion in particular was very popular and attracted tons of tourists because he came close to them and tolerated their presence. Not only did this fat sack of shit kill an endangered animal illegally, but he also damaged a whole country's tourist industry.

It was Illegal due to the fact he lured the animal out of a protected area and killed it while it had a collar on. However hunting a lion is not illegal over there. As Seen Here, it costs $29 130 with the following Trophies Included: 1 Lion, 1 Gemsbok, 1 Waterbuck, 1 Black Wildebeest

But wait there is more, Here its \$50,000 to hunt a lion

superskidhf - July 29, 2015, 5:49 am

I would love to hunt these assholes with a bow and arrow. Killing animals for fun is weak and cowardly.

Jose"the real 1" - July 29, 2015, 5:53 am for stuff like this we must love the internet, this dentist is a shame for the human race, and i'm happy to see that he really will suffer consequences. I never understood why you have to hunt just for the fun to kill. But, since it was all over the news (even in europe) this guy will have some fucked up times coming his way!

R.I.P Cecil!

Your an idiot then.

There was numerous trophy hinted animals very recently and they have all caused this type of uproar. In reality the event saves the animals species.

Also where does hypocrite come from? Your just pulling words out of your ass and hoping it strings a sentence together. Like really? Don't try.

There was some elephant or something most recently that someone paid 250k or something to kill.

Fuck it, too hard to argue with people when they have no clue or have never heard about this stuff before.

Before you kids argue, educate yourself.

Or maybe, JUST MAYBE, don't kill animals that pose you no harm or do you not plan to consume.

Just a thought.

I agree, trophy hunting is a little fucked up.

But that article says nothing about where the animal went. Was it shared to the neighboring village people? Or just discarded and completely wasted.

It's touchy. But we can't know everything nor his attitude towards it from some bias article.

But also as I said it usually goes towards conservation.

I am curious if our endangered animals list is honored over there anyways. Was the endangered animals part of the UN's Decision? If its the USA's listing, then our laws do not apply to them over there.

I'm sorry to tell you but killing lions does not preserve any other species. Matter of fact, killing a grown lion doesn't only result in the loss of one but many more lions. Cecil was the leader of a big group of animals and his death will result in a different lion taking over his leadership position. To make sure no one stops that procedure that lion will kill all of Cecil's cubs. The next lion in their group hierarchy is called Jericho and he will make sure that Cecil's bloodline won't continue. That is a part of nature, it handles itself, but the event that triggered it wasn't natural. This isn't the right way to go about it, so no wonder lions are endangered.

PRESERVING GENETIC INTEGRITY

Trophy hunting still takes place in the White Lions' natural distribution range and the captive breeding in canned hunting operations has put the genetic pool under duress. The WLT's Scientific Research Centre has acquired key individual White Lions of the highest genetic integrity to participate in the genetic research and preservation program. The WLT initiated the White Lion Protection Plan™, and presented this survival plan to the South African Parliament in February 2008. The outcome was extremely positive, with the Parliamentary Committee resolving to support the WLT's conservation efforts. A copy of the parliamentary presentation is available on www.pmg.org.za.

So as you can see it's a very touchy subject. Regardless, I think that is fucked up if the meat from that animal was not eaten or shared with the villages in the area. If it was wasteful, then there's a problem that needs to be addressed.

If you think about it life imprisonment is killing him too as of prison people get killed daily/weekly and thus if he did survive it's throwing his life away which in a way is still killing him.
