Thread: [Upgrading from Windows 7 to Windows 10 \[HDMI Help\]](#)

?¢?????-???? - July 31, 2015, 8:18 am

Hi,

First of all, is it worth upgrading to Windows 10?

Secondly, I tried upgrading to Windows 10 yesterday and as soon as it reached to 30% my computer restarted and was black screen for about 20 minutes so I restarted my PC and it restored my PC back to windows 7.

Is there a way I can download windows 10 driver so I can use my HDMI? I have a VGA cable but I need a converter to use it, unfortunately.

Or am I doing something wrong?

Thanks.

I don't believe it's a HDMI problem... however it could be. You don't have a spare DVI/VGA cable sitting in another computer that you could use to test for the time being?

Which version of Windows is your gaming PC running at the moment?

Both windows 7.

I suggest you take a look here as it might help you get your password back:

Method 3 seems like the best option since you don't have access to the computer.

Alright, I'll have it ready but I'll get my other PC out soon, it's all packed up. :p

I downloaded iSunshare and it was a trial version, I couldn't reset my password in the end, what a waste of time lol.

I'll just wait till they fixed all the bugs.

Thanks for the help.
