

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: DoNotSpy10 : a freeware to disable all privacy stealing

Hash G. - August 5, 2015, 1:16 am

Since it looks like it's fearing y'all, I thought I'd share this tool with you.

[img]http://korben.info/wp-content/uploads/2015/08/2015-08-05_08-11-53-650x492.png[/img]

You just have to check/uncheck the settings you wants, without go through all the Windows menus and submenus. Be careful because you also have Windows Update settings and Windows Defender.

If you install it, choose "Advanced" and don't install the adware. Windows SmartScreen protection may display a warning when you run the program. You need to click on the "more info" link and then on the next screen on "run anyway" to install the program.

This software is made by pXc coding and you can find it here.

Source.

Internet Explorer. - August 5, 2015, 1:20 am

I don't really get it.

They'll get your stuff anyways if they want it.

Btw..

Hello NSA! :D

Hash G. - August 5, 2015, 2:39 am

(Aug 5, 2015 01:20 AM)Internet Explorer. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't really get it.

They'll get your stuff anyways if they want it.

Btw..

Hello NSA! :D

Yes but it's just a faster way to disable the settings you want. You don't have to search through each menu & submenu of windows.

Private Network - August 5, 2015, 2:40 am

Or you got to your Windows settings?

Jackie Chun - August 5, 2015, 8:55 am

Can you give us a link to the direct .exe file? I hope it's written in .NET so I can try decompiling it to see exactly what it does.

Grin - August 5, 2015, 8:57 am

(Aug 5, 2015 08:55 AM)Jackie Chun Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can you give us a link to the direct .exe file? I hope it's written in .NET so I can try decompiling it to see exactly what it does.

Wouldn't it be ironic if it was backdoored?

Mr Whiskey - August 5, 2015, 8:58 am

Or you could use this: <https://github.com/10se1ucgo/DisableWinTracking>

On github :P

archangel.dmitry - August 5, 2015, 9:04 am

(Aug 5, 2015 08:58 AM)Professional Leech Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Or you could use this:
<https://github.com/10se1ucgo/DisableWinTracking>

On github :P

Github has a newer version as well... Other than that, it could be useful for people who trust such tools or/and do not want to go through settings manually.

Hash G. - August 5, 2015, 11:31 am

(Aug 5, 2015 02:40 AM)Private Network Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Or you got to your Windows settings?What if you are lazy ? ?

HazrdN - August 5, 2015, 12:21 pm

Or not use windows at all if you want privacy.

kenjoe1230 - August 5, 2015, 12:45 pm

(Aug 5, 2015 12:21 PM)HazrdN Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Or not use windows at all if you want privacy.
That's not an option for some people.

Spartan. - August 5, 2015, 2:59 pm

Nice post, this will help people.

Hunting Rifle - August 5, 2015, 3:01 pm

If you are paranoid just search for the thing you want to disable on google and you will get the registry key.

iLogic™ - August 24, 2015, 12:48 pm

(Aug 5, 2015 08:55 AM)Jackie Chun Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can you give us a link to the direct .exe file? I hope it's written in .NET so I can try decompiling it to see exactly what it does.It should be obfuscated, packed, crypted etc.